EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Buchanan was the only bachelor President the United States ever had or will have.

Now the agonizing rumor is current that Hendricks will retire from the ticket in disgust.

Ben Butler's yearly income from his profession is $100,000, and he has numerous other very profitable sources of support.

Had Mr. Hendricks had his way no colored man would be able to vote, send his children to public schools or ride on a street car.

The Rev. John B. Curtis, a retired Methodist clergymen 85 years old, living at Greenland, N J., has just married his third wife, Mrs. Louisa Hoover, aged 65 years.

No wonder that the Prohibitionists will not support Mr. Blaine when he puts in so much of his leisure time at a place with such a sinful name as Bar Harbor.

Taken in connection with certain reports recently circulated about Governor Cleveland, the Rev. Mr. Beecher's decision not to support him may perhaps be set down to jealousy.

Dr. Mary Walker is writing a book. Unless the Messrs. Harper publish it, she cannot expect to have the support of Harper's Weekly when she runs for President of the United States.

Pittsburgh is now seeing the beauties of "assisted emigration." The Government should persist in the most stringent measures against this evil, and other Nations, Great Britain in particular, must be shown that this country is not a mere dumping ground for the people they don't want. There should be some distinction between an asylum for the oppressed and a cesspool.

Mr. Grover Cleveland turns out to be a far heavier load than the Chicago Convention contracted for. As an unknown quantity he was heavy enough; but the more he be comes known the greater is the weight the Democrat finds loaded on their backs. They could have taken their man blind, from among all their aspirants, and have been sure of getting an easier candidate to run.

The nomination of Hon. B. F. Hewitt, for Senator, by the Republicans of Blair county, will secure to the Senate an able and accomplished gentleman, to the party a zealous and skillful Republican, and to the state a faithful and honest servant. His ability, his familiarity with the affairs of Pennsylvania, his urbanity and genial disposition make his choice one that will give much satisfaction to his friends and to the party generally throughout the State.

The Democratic papers are asserting that of seventeen German papers in Ohio not one is for Blaine. The truth is that not one German Republican paper has refused to support him, while two independent German journals have wheeled into line and are enthusiastic in his cause. This is merely a sample of the Democratic lies we may expect from now until the election. We have heard Bellefonte Democrats give circulation to the falsehood in reference to the German papers in Ohio.

Mr. Blaine and the Suspects.

The position and policy of Mr. Blaine while secretary of state in regard to the American citizens imprisoned as "suspects" in Ireland is made the subject of inquiry by a correspondent of the Philadelphia Press and that journal replies as follows: These prisoners were naturalized American citizens resident in Ireland, imprisoned by the British Government under the "Coercion act," without trial or charges. The act itself while oppressive and utterly unjust, was, in the strict sense of the term, "legal," and the responsibility of all persons on foreign soil to the law of the land is, within certain limits, a general principle of international law. Every government, however, has a right to insist that its citizens shall not be treated with exceptional severity, and Great Britain has repeatedly demanded of this country that the ordinary and normal course of justice and the usual safeguards of personal liberty and individual innocence shall not be violated as against its own citizens, however, they may be departed from in dealing with domestic disturbers of the peace. As Lord Lyons put it during the rebellion: "Her Majesty's Government cannot concede that a system may be adopted which will have the practical effect of placing neutral subjects in the same position as those of the enemy." The United States has in its turn twice made the same demand of England—once by Secretary Seward, during the Fenian troubles, and again by Secretary Blaine.

This policy was first laid down by Secretary Blaine in his dispatch of May 26, 1881. The Coercion act, "from its tenor," Mr. Blaine pointed out in his dispatch to Mr. Lowell, our minister, gave "a latitude of action to the British authorities which this Government would be loath to see insisted upon in the case of an American citizen." Admitting that American citizenship could not, "of itself, operate to exempt any one from the penalties of a law," Mr. Blaine still insisted that no legislation could "absolve the justice of the country where the commission of the act is alleged, from the burden of proving the guilt of the criminal by due process of of law within a reasonable time, or, in default of prompt and lawful proof, from the obligation of releasing him." A week later, June 2, 1881, the case of Joseph B. Walsh came before the Department, and Mr. Blaine repeated his position still more vigorously, in the following language:

Whatever the necessity may be in the estimation of her Majesty's Government for the existence and enforcement in Ireland of the exceptional legislative measures recently enacted in respect to that country, this country cannot view with unconcern the application of the summary proceedings attendant upon the execution of these measures to naturalized citizens of the United States of Irish origin, whose business relations may render necessary their presence in Ireland or any other part of the United Kingdom, or whose filial instincts and love for kindred may have prompted them to revisit their native country. If American citizens, while within British jurisdiction, offend against British laws, this Government will not seek to shield them from the legal consequences of their acts, but it must insist upon the application to their cases of those common principles of criminal jurisprudence which in the United States secure to every man who offends against its laws, whether he be an American citizen or a foreign subject, those incidents to a criminal prosecution which afford the best safeguard to personal liberty and the strongest protection against oppression under the forms of law, which might otherwise be practiced through excessive zeal. That an accused person shall, immediately upon arrest, be informed of the specific crime or offense upon which he is held and that he shall be afforded an opportunity for a speedy trial before an impartial court and jury are essentials to every criminal prosecution necessary alike to the protection of innocence and the ascertainment of guilt.

These instructions to Mr. Lowell followed the exact line of English precedents in dealing with this country. They had the support of precedent practice. They show Mr. Blaine's position beyond question. Had they been followed in good faith by Mr. Lowell the Americans imprisoned as suspects in Irish jails would have been released months earlier than they were. When at last, after long and deliberate disobedience of these instructions, Mr. Lowell was spurred to action in May, 1882, the spirit and tenor of these instructions was resumed in Mr. Frelinghuysen's despatch of April 26, 1882, and the suspects were a few weeks later released.

The Reason Why.

The bolting element of the Republican party who some time ago had the boldness to declare that they will vote for Cleveland and Hendricks are now in a sore quandary over their rash determination, and in the pitiable depths of humility are endeavoring to offer justifiable reasons for it. The Philadelphia Press has convicted the Harpers of changing from intense admiration or Blaine, as expressed by letters written by them recently, to sudden dislike, as indicated by their course since Blaine's nomination, because Blaine gave to other publishers the contract to print his book, "Twenty Years in Congress."

Other publications assign different reasons for their sudden bolt, some pretending that it is for reasons of exalted sense of virtue, though "recent developments from Buffalo" have doubtless taken that reason away from them, and hence the quandary. At one time the New York Times was anxious to make Free Trade an issue, but the assertion of the workingmen that they will desert a Free Trade party has disheartened the Times considerably. But it nevertheless remains true that Free Trade proclivities constitute the real cause for the bolt of that and other publications. As further explanatory of their unenviable position, the following from the N. Y. Tribune is interesting:

It must be joy to President Eliot to be associated with cowards, who mean free trade but dare not say so. In journals like the New York Times, Herald and World, people are daily told that free trade is not the main issue and is not at the bottom of Republican opposition to Mr. Blaine. But President Eliot shows that the pretences of exasperated virtue are fraudulent. Asked why he and Senator Hoar differ about Mr. Blaine, he replies: "Senator "Hoar is my personal friend and is "following out his protectionist con-"victions in supporting Blaine. As "for myself I shall vote for Cleve-"land and Hendricks. Senator Hoar "is an old-style protectionist, and "most of the young Harvard gradu-"ates are free traders, having done "with protection." That tells the story, honestly and manfully. President Eliot does not want to cheat anybody. But his party does; his candidates do, and his principal organs do. His party adopts a platform that is intended to deceive. His candidates stoop to become candidates on such a platform, concealing their real opinions. His principal newspaper organs pretend that the main issue concerns Mr. Blaine's personal integrity.

The more closely the Independent movement is looked into, the more convincing are the proofs that it is nothing but a Free Trade bolt. There is not in this whole country an Independent who believes in Protection. They are all Free Traders of the most radical type. Their pretended opposition to Mr. Blaine is merely a cloak for their real purpose. Had the Republican platform declared for Free Trade these reformers would be loudest in lauding Mr. Blaine to the skies. As it is, they try to sneak behind the cover of exploded slanders to accomplish their real designs upon the industries of our country.

An Illinois man has found a free trader who is not a Democrat. He would be a good man to send out to look for the Independent movement. It is feared that it has got sidetracked somewhere.

A Weak Defense.

It will not do for Cleveland to wait until about one month before the election to begin a libel suit against the paper that first published those serious charges against him, and then have the trial but just begun at the time of election. He must institute such a trial at once and have the truth or falsity of the charges established. If proven false he may secure the support of decent Democrats; otherwise, no respectable man of any political party will vote for him.

The card signed by C. W. McCune, of Buffalo, which appears in this week's Centre Democrat, is not a satisfactory denial at all as Democrats are not at all too good to assert falsehoods for the purpose of protecting their candidates. A legal investigation alone will suffice. Besides, many Democrats and Republicans assert that it is true, and is their word to be taken as false against this one unknown individual? Another enthusiastic friend of Gov. Cleveland also writes in his defense to the N. Y. Sun, but is compelled to use the following paragraph in his letter:

Grover Cleveland has not lived a chaste life, but his connection with impure women has not been flaunted in the face of the public, and, except for his present prominent position, his life in this respect would doubtless have been unknown by the general public.

If even what this correspondent says is true in regard to Gov. Cleveland, the people of the United States do not want him. Chastity of life is certainly desirable in the chief ruler of this country and no man with a sullied character can be elevated to a place of power.

Philadelphia Press.

Among Cleveland's vetoes is one of a bill prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to children. A more beneficient and entirely proper measure can hardly be conceived. It was directly in the interest of the health and morals of the boys whose constitutions are being undermined and nervous systems impaired by the use of the deadly cigarette. On the puerile and indefensible ground that the bill did not forbid manufacturers and dealers from giving away cigarettes to children, Gov. Cleveland withheld his consent and the bill failed. The Democratic candidate's claim to be a statesman on the strength of his vetoes will not bear examination.

There is grief among the mud-slinging fraternity because the late Judge Black is being quoted against them. He said he had examined the charges against Mr. Blaine, had the evidence upon which they were predicated, and that they were proved untrue and impossible. Can it be that the deceased statesman is not to be allowed to rest even in his grave, but that those who pretended in his life to revere him, are going to impeach his integrity, when he cannot defend himself, in order to support their utterly groundless defamation of Mr. Blaine?—Lock Haven Express.

The public will be pained to learn that estimable person, W. H. Vanderbilt, has been financially unfortunate of late, and that his wealth has dwindled down to the paltry sum of $150,000,000. This is very sad, and no doubt visions of the hour when he will have to hitch up Maud S. for a trip "over the hills to the poor-house" embitters the poor man's life.

One More Denial.

The Democrats, in their anxiety to avert the overwhelming ruin that threatens their party, spend about all their time and effort in the attempt to find fault with the record of the Republican candidate for President. It is only necessary for the Republicans to deny the false stories they concoct, each such denial reflecting so severely on the Democrats as to disgust many of their number. We publish the following telegram without comment as it is sufficiently explicit:

Boston, August 4.—The Journal having made careful inquiries respecting the recent charges in the New York Herald and other papers to the effect that Mr. Blaine was a Know-nothing when he first went to Maine, and wrote articles in the Kennebec Journal in support of that organization and inimical to foreign-born citizens and residents, will say to-morrow:

First—That Mr. Blaine never was a member of the Know-nothing organization, but commended his partner, Mr. Stevens, who was at one time a nominal member of the order, in his determination to discard the organization as unfit for the membership of American citizens.

Second—That the assault upon a Catholic priest, which it is charged Mr. Blaine endorsed, took place months before he became a resident of Maine.

Third—That instead of being a Know-nothing organ, the Kennebec Journal, when owned and controlled by Mr. Blaine and Mr. Stevens, engaged actively in the effort of inducing members of that organization to abandon it and give a full field to the Republican party.

P. T. Barnum, the great showman, is a Democrat, but he will vote for Blaine and Logan. At a ratification meeting at Ocean View the other night he was one of the speakers. He said he was a Democrat, but the choice now was of principles, and in this respect the Republican nominees were the most trustworthy, and their platform the safest. With acquaintances all over the civilized world, and with nearly as many friends in England as in America, he spoke confidently of the dangers that would ensue to American industry from a Democratic triumph. English manufacturing friends had told him repeatedly that if the protective tariff were removed they could and would shut up all the large American workshops inside of three months. Free trade meant utter ruin to the manufacturer. It meant more. Grant that the farmer can now sell his grain abroad, how long can he do so with profit? England is pushing a railroad to India, whence she will try to obtain all the grain she needs, to the exclusion of the American supply. Protect our home industries and have a home market for our natural and artificial products. He had repeatedly taken English and Scotch manufacturers to visit the establishment of Wheeler & Wilson, at Bridgeport. They never before saw workmen apparently all so prosperous. Their dress, their food, their houses; so superior to those of foreign laborers, astonished these Britons. He would support Blaine for his temperance principles.

The ovation Monday, August 4, at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, to the Arctic explorers, was but a faint echo of the joyous throbbing of the nation's heart at their rescue. It is not great exaggeration to say that every man, woman and child of the nation, who can read, feels a personal love and admiration for Lieutenant Greely and his valiant comrades. Their sufferings and their manful bearing under them have earned all the respect and honor this country and the world is paying.

The Watchman is away behind the times. It reprints that oft-refuted statement that seventeen German papers in Ohio are against Blaine and Logan.

The widows are bothering Cleveland—Ben Butler and Maria Halpin.

It seems that Puck tattooed the wrong man.

Poetry.

VACATION TIME.

"Be wary, be wary," says Mother Trout
To her young ones down in the brook,
"For I know by the chirre of the grasshopper,
And the way things gen'rally look,
'Tis time for vacation, and murderous boys,
And make-believe flies in the water to poise."

"Ah me! ah me!" cries a mournful gull
To her mates by the sounding sea,
"Now 'tis growing so hot in the shadiest spot,
Dark visions are harrowing me
Of maids that wear wings on their bonnets bold,
And terrible youths with a gun in their hold.'

"Be shy, oh, be shy," clucks the speckled hen
To her brood in the farm-yard warm,
"For this, sweet things, is the time that brings
Summer boarders back to the farm,
And a plump spring chick is gobbled like dew
By this terribly wicked, rapacious crew."

"Alas and alas!" croaks a wretched frog,
With a horse, shrill voice, in the pool,
"By my dreams do I fear that the time is near
When city children are let from school,
And there is some terrible tragedy,
Some dark fate, in store for my people and me."

"Oh, sisters mine," sighs a cat-tail fair,
With her delicate foot in the bog,
"Now shortly, ah me, we shall seized be
For a pattern to work on a rug,
Or to pin on the wall in some gloomy room;
My sad soul tells me vacation nears come."

A MISTAKEN NOTION.

A silly notion people have, 'tis said,
That when upon an editor you call
Your very footsteps he is thought to dread,
And while at work don't care to talk at all.

Though you may bore him till his blood runs cold
He says he's glad to have you call around,
Yet if the solid truth were to be told,
He oft devoutly wishes you were drowned.

A BANG AND A SMACK.

Departing, I had clipped a curl
That o'er her brow did hang;
She, smiling, said: "You're like a gun,
You got off with a 'bang.'"

At which I pressed her lips, and cried:
"For punning you've a knack;
But now I'm like a fisherman,
I got off with a 'smack.'"

Our Story Teller.

Not a Coward.

"I thought I should find you with the girls, Mr. Godwin. You should have been with us. We've had such a scramble over Honister Crag and brought back no end of flowers for Gertrude. But one thing I must say—that fellow Losford is a jolly muff, though he doesn't look it. Just a funk, girls, and nothing else. Will you give me some tea, Mrs. Godwin?"

"What nonsense you talk, Bob!" cried his sister, conscious by some feminine instinct that her friend's face was hotter than a moment before. "You are a perfect mauvais enfant bursting in like that. I wish Mr. Losford would teach you manners."

"I'd like to se him try. It would take a pluckier man than he is. Why, he wouldn't come within yards of the edge, Mrs. Goodwin!"

"He showed his usual good sense, Master Robert," was that lady's tart reply. She had her reasons for looking favorably upon Walter Losford, of Losford Court, Monmouthshire, by no means the least honored guest at Mr. Godwin's lake villa. And they were a very cherry and pleasant party; the pleasantest set, Gertrude thought, that her mother had ever got together; and Gertrude was a young lady of decided tastes, and somewhat difficult to please. Even Bob Marston, when he was not saying absurd things, and appearing when he is not wanted at inopportune moments, was as amusing as any other Eton boy. Nevertheless, at this moment, two people at least were ardently longing to make his ears tingle.

"And what is the programme for to-morrow, Mr. Godwin?" resumed the young gentleman, not a whit daunted by the unfavorable reception of his last remark. "Can we picnic on the Red Pike? It would be jolly fun."

The host hemmed and hawed; he rather preferred an open-air entertainment at a place accessible in an open carrriage. But if you have a house among the mountains, up them you must go. The climbing disease is infectious, and there is no evading it until, by a permanent residence, you become proof against its attacks. Mr. Godwin would have to succumb sooner or later.

"Yes, Bob," said Gertrude, suddenly laying down the fan with which she was playing, "we will go to Red Pike to-morrow."

And Bob, who had thought that in his own language he had rather "put his put in it," was comforted and knew that to the Red Pike he would go.

Gertrude's face as she went up stairs to dress for dinner was thoughtful. "He showed his usual good sense," Mrs. Goodwin had said, and the words kept ringing in her daughter's ears until her lip began to curl with scorn. If there was one thing which Gertrude admired it was courage; was she beginning, almost more than beginning, to like a man who could be called a coward even by a boy? It made her cheeks tinge with shame and anger. Proud and high-spirited herself, good sense of the kind Mrs. Goodwin meant was not in high esteem with her. And, alas! the insinuation chimed with other things. Walter Losford was hardly one to please a romantic girl at first sight. Cold, sensible and wanting in enthusiasm even in his ambition, trying nearly everything by the arguments of reason with impartial severity, he would have made a just and not too merciful judge. Living by rule of thumb, no wonder that he looked older than his thirty years, or that he repelled chance acquaintances who called him a prig. Generally reticent, he would sometimes tell the truth with rude apruptness. Altogether, his friends said, a little wanting in charity, too practical, too matter of fact. And yet, poor Gertrude! when she met him at dinner, the hauteur she assumed melted away, and she blushed and smiled at his glance; for what is so fascinating as the homage of one who seems utterly, almost contemptuously, careless of all beside? If Walter had spoken that evening, he would have assuredly gained his object, and Mrs. Godwin been made a happy woman.

The Red Pike was red indeed in the evening sunlight, every cliff that buttressed its rugged top burnished to ruddiness, and yet the party lingered, reluctant to abandon the view of sea and land from Forth to Windermere that held them entranced. Tea was over, and the servants had started downwards with the baggage; yet the party, which all day had wandered separately or in pairs at their several wills, still sat together on the top. Bob only was on the move, skirmishing hither and thither untiringly.

"I say, Gertrude, here's a specimen for you! Here's a blue gentian growing on this cliff, and a rare good climb it will be to it."

The party hastened to the edge of the cliff. In a cranny of the rock about twelve feet down grew the flower Gertrude had been long seeking to obtain. A slight opening in the wall of the cliff made it just feasible, if somewhat dangerous to reach it.

"Robert, don't go too near," cried Mrs. Godwin.

Gertrude turned with her face a little flushed to Losford. "Can you get it for me, Mr. Losford?" she said gently, with something of appeal in her voice.

"Not without a rope," he answered calmly. "We will bring one up to-morrow."

"To-morrow!" cried Gertrude, with sudden heat; "I want it now. Bob would get it for me in a moment if I asked him, Mr. Losford."

"Bob's head is perhaps steadier than mine," answered the other keeping at a safe distance from the edge. He was in no way discomposed until as he finished his eyes met the girl's, full of contempt and anger. Stung by the look he took a hasty step towards the edge of the cliff and bent down to make the attempt. For a moment he remained in that position as if entranced; scanning the depth below, a sheer three hundred feet, and then, and far beneath, pale blue Crummock water. With a quick shudder, he passed his hand across his eyes and recoiled, white at the lips.

"I can't get it for you," he said hoarsely, falling back, while the others looked at one another in astonishment.

"And quite right, too, Mr. Losford; don't try any such foolishness, I beg," cried Mrs. Godwin loudly. Loudly, but not so that he failed to hear the one word "Coward!" or to distinguish the tone of contempt in which it fell from her daughter's lips as she turned away. The next instant he was his old calm self again; but he knew that he had his dismissal.

As for the bit of blue gentian, Bob brought it up in a twinkling, and chattered on in such a way as to earn every one's gratitude. Yet it was a dull party that wended its way down the hill, and clear it was to more than one that a budding romance had come to an end over the little flower which nestled so harmlessly in Gertrude's fair hair. Yet mothers are sanguine, and Mrs. Godwin's face grew scarlet with anger when the spray appeared again at dinner conspicuously fastened in the bosom of her daughter's dress.

If it was only an awkward hour at dinner that Mrs. Godwin feared Fate was to save her hospitality from, to do her justice, an unwonted slur.

"Where is Robert?" she asked pettishly, after helping the soup. "Do you know, Violet?"

Miss Marston did not. Bob was not wont to be punctual, and she was about to say so, when the butler, who had been called from the room, entered hastily, and whispered something in his master's ear. Mr. Godwin rose quickly.

"My dear, this is bad news. There has been a fall at the lead works."

"How unfortunate! I am thankful the men were not at work. Or even worse, we might have been viewing them, as Robert has been plaguing us to do, and been all crushed together, like any common laborers! Shocking! But were can Robert be?"

"I am afraid, ma'an," put in the butler in a low voice which every one heard well with preternatural distinctness, "that Master Robert—leastwise he went that way when he came back—is in there. John has gone to the village for help."

There was a dead silence round that fair show of linen and gleaming silver, as if the hand that warned Belshazzar had appeared upon the wall. Then Gertrude glided to her friend's side and put her arm round her. The gentlemen hurried from the room. But almost as soon as they reached the scene the women appeared there also; the poor boy's sister could not be restrained and Mrs. Godwin, whose woman's heart was sound within her, signed to Gertrude to let her go. Anything was better than inaction.

Mr. Godwin's wad-hole and works were hardly a quarter of a mile from the house, though hidden from it by a steep shoulder of the hill. He guessed at once that the boy, anxious to exhibit to the ladies the wonders of the wad-hole, had taken the private key, which generally lay upon the study mantel-piece, and had gone, it might be, to make some preparations whereby his darling effects would be enhanced. A servant seeking him when dinner was ready discovered the accident, and after giving the alarm in the servants' hall gone on to the village.

"Is there any hope?" said Gertrude in a a low voice, with Violet Marston's hand tight clasped in hers. "Are they digging?"

The flaring light of a pine-knot fire just kindled in the little inclosure at the mouth of the hole fell upon a score or two of strange-looking figures, chiefly women. Some were moving to and fro before the blaze, but most of them stood still and impassive. The shining clothes of the men prbclaimed their trade as they brushed, all distinctions forgotten, against the gay dresses of the house party.

"No," replied her father with a groan. "The props at this end are gone, and the men say the whole hill is coming down. We must wait for help from Keswick."

Gertrude was turning to the group indignantly, but one was before her.

"Now, men, I can handle a pick though I am a Londoner. Ten pounds to every man who joins me!", Don't let them say that the Cumberland men left their master's guest to perish because they were cowards."

The cold, impassive face was aglow with energy and excitement. Was it Gertrude's fancy, or was it that word in his voice really struck her like a whip?

"The hill is on the move, master, and he be dead, too," said the foremost man, but shamefully.

"Hush, his sister be there!" put in a woman softly.

There was an instant's hesitation, while all watched the big miner; then after a glance at their faces:

"We're with you, master!" cried he, seizing the tool at his feet like a giant aroused.

The spell was broken, and who then so reckless as the Cumberland men? Losford soon had to check them and assist the foreman to compel them to underpin and take other proper precautions as they worked. In time more men flocked from neighboring pits to the spot, and the task was carried on by gangs. Notwithstanding Mr. and Mrs. Godwin's entreaties, the poor girl most concerned would not leave, and hour after hour, while seemingly countless loads of earth were wheeled or carried from the deepening entrance, she walked to and fro, or lay, with Gertrude's hand in hers, on the wraps laid in a corner formed by two walls. How each shining worker was gazed at as he came from the darkness into the blaze of the fire and deposited his load! Whoever worked by spells, the figure Gertrude knew best did not appear. But when the faint lingering hope was dying away, one of the other men staying in the house came quickly up to Violet.

"Miss Marston, do not be too sanguine. There is hope yet, however. The fall is only partial, and he may be in the main workings. Some of the men fancy that they have heard him knocking."

Violet made no reply. She was sobbing on Gertrude's shoulder.

"Is anyone hurt?" asked the latter eagerly.

"No, hardly at all. A few cuts from stones."

Another hour passed, while the crowd thickened and listened all breathlessly to the dull muffled sound of the tools and the creaking of the barrows. A fresh gang was at work, and they came out more quickly. The sky was growing gray, and men's faces looked so, too, as the fire burned with a paler light and the hilltops came out in cold majesty.

Suddenly the tools ceased; a barrow on its way out stopped inside the entrance. The crowd outside drew close and breathed more quickly, and women hid their faces as the sound of voices low murmuring came from the passage. Then a little crowd of men passed out and in their midst, Walter Losford, stained and ragged, with the boy's form in his arms. He laid him quickly on the wraps by the women. The blood was trickling slowly from a cut in his own forehead, and his face, where it was not lead-grimmed, was pallid with fatigue.

"He had only fainted," he said, as the doctor bent over the boy.

"Just so!" said the latter cheerily. "He only wants a glass of sherry."

Gertrude rose from the boy to thank his bearer, her eyes dim with happiness. But he had turned away.

"The worst time was just before they broke in, Gerty. I thought the earth must fall again or something happen to prevent them reaching me," confided Bob to her when she visited him the next day in his room. The whole matter was to Master Bob one for pure congratulation, and he spent his time in rehearsing a graphic account of the adventure for the benefit of his dame's house. "But that fellow Losford is no end of a trump. He's been up to say good-bye, and I told him what an ass I had made myself about him. That's a comfort. I heard his voice first of all, do you know, and Mrs. Godwin says they wouldn't have got me out but for him."

The likelihood of this alternative appeared to give him unmixed satisfaction.

"I don't think they would," murmured Gertrude, eagerly presenting him with a large bunch of grapes from a side table. "I'll get you some more, Bob."

"You bet your boots they wouldn't. It's a pity he can't climb. Fancy a fellow like that, with what the doctor calls 'constitutional vertigo!' I can't make it out."

And Bob fell into a brown study, which passed into a doze; and, thus refreshed, he was enabled to chatter without ceasing all dinner time.

Gertrude stole out of the room and running down stairs found him in the hall. He had mislaid a favorite stick.

"Mr. Losford," she began hurriedly, standing before him in she knew not what attitude of pretty humility. "I said something yesterday the memory of which is burning me with shame. I cannot forgive myself; but will you say that you do? Bob has made amends. Let me do so. What a foolish girl said cannot have hurt you?" she pleaded, as he made no answer.

"Rather, should not have hurt me," he replied gravely; "yet it did cruelly, Miss Godwin. But for the chance occurrence of last night you would be thinking so still. It was ungenerous, as well as thoughtless."

Gertrude winced under each almost contemptuous word. She had not bargained for this. Too much hurt for tears, she murmured as she turned away.

"I'm sorry."

"A moment, please! From any other woman I should have accepted the apology without a word. I have scolded you that you might know what it was like before I asked you to give me the right to do it. Gertrude, will you be my wife?"

And Gertrude answered "Yes."

When she had fully satisfied him upon this point, she asked:

"And have you quite forgiven me, Walter?"

"I shall have when you have done the penance I order." There was a twinkle of fun in his eyes a stranger would not have believed could harbor there. "It is that you wear the bit of blue gentian at dinner this evening."

The sight of which harmless specimen caused Bob to blush the only blush he was guilty of in his school-days.

Viewing the Machinery.

They had been sitting on the promenade deck for more than an hour, when she suggested that they go down stairs and look at the machinery. He agreed, and an old lady who sat near and heard the conversation rose up and said:

"Young man, have you any ob jection to my going along. I've allus been crazy on the subject of machinery."

He replied that he would be delighted and she followed the couple to the main deck.

"This, I suppose you know," began the young man, "is the main shaft."

"Yes—yes—came from the State of Maine," twittered the young lady.

The old woman stuck up her nose but made no remarks.

"That up there is the walking beam."

"Oh! is it? How nice! You wouldn't think it could walk, but of course it does."

The old woman put on her specks to get a better look at the girl.

"That rod you see there," continued the young man, "is called an eccentric"

"How funny! But why shouldn't it be? There are eccentric people, and why shouldn't there be eccentric rods? I presume it gets cranky sometimes. Go on, George."

I don't believe it!" muttered the old woman.

"And that is called a steam chest, my dear."

"Oh! is it? I've always wanted to see one. They put their steam in there so as to keep it cool and nice. It's the same principle as a refrigerator. Yes, George."

The old woman removed her specs and began to look as mad as a cow on a sandbar.

"That thing up there is called a steam dial," said George.

"Oh, how nice! I've read of it somewhere in Shakespeare's works. I see the pointer is at 80. My! but who'd believe we were carrying eighty tons of steam! George, if we blow up you must save me—indeed, you must. What's that glass thing?"

"It's a water indicator."

"Oh, I see. It indicates that we are on the water. How grateful we ought to be to the geniuses of America for these inventions!"

Here the old lady started to leave with a "humph!" of disgust, but the young man called:

"Madam, are you not interested?"

"Look a-here, young man!" she exclaimed as she wheeled around; "mebbe you kin make a fool of that innercent young gal, and mebbe she delights in it, but when it comes to stuffing old hens with chopped straw it won't go down! Pass on! I'm a walkin'-beam myself, and I'm goin' to walk."

And away she sailed, carrying forty-five pounds of steam by the dial.

An appetizing breakfast may have for its chief attraction a tender chicken browned in cream. Parboil the chicken, and when the wing—the toughest part of any fowl—can be pierced with a broom splint without effort, take it out of the kettle; drain it well. Put one pint of cream into a large frying pan, let it become heated, then lay the chicken into the pan; it should first be cut in pieces, as if you intended to fricassee it. Let it cook in the cream until it is all of a rich brown; then pour the cream out into a small saucepan, put a lump of butter in with the chicken; after it melts turn the chicken over, so that it will be browned on both sides alike. Thicken the cream with a little flour, and serve as gravy in a boat, or after putting the chicken on a platter, pour the cream over it. Baked potatoes, and hot rolls with coffee, should accompany this to the table.

Your First Vote.

By Robert Burdette.

My son, you will cast your first vote for President next November. I don't want to influence your vote. I don't want you to vote for a certain man just because certain other men do. I want you to sit down and think about it before you vote. I want you to go to the polls in good company. As a young man of progressive ideas, I want you to be abreast of the world and shoulder to shoulder with the times when you walk up to the polls. I want you when entering politics, to align with the party that has the purest, most progressive record. I don't care a cent, my boy, whether you are a Republican or a Democrat. There are honest men, patriotic citizens, good Christians in both parties. Only I don't want to see you walk up to the polls and cast your first vote with the party

That upheld human slavery as a divine institution;

That bought and sold men, women and babies like so many mules;

That fired on Fort Sumter and the American flag;

That for nearly five years fought to destroy the Union;

That opposed the issue of greenbacks when the government was fairly perishing for want of them;

That organized mobs and riots to oppose the draft;

That swept American commerce from the seas with armed privateers;

That is the party of Boss Tweed and Jefferson Davis;

That polls its heaviest majorities in the most vicious and ignorant precincts;

That is strongest in the states were the percentage of illiteracy is greatest;

That has opposed every liberal and progress measure in legislation during the last quarter of a century;

That was the defender of slavery;

That was the defender of Mormonism;

That slandered Garfield; and

That assassinated Lincoln.

Now, as I said before my son, I don't care whether you are a Republican or a Democrat. Choose for yourself. Just keep away from the crowd whose record I have very briefly outlined. Find the party to whom this record belongs, and then forever keep away from it. You need not be particular with which party you unite if you don't join that one. Always vote against that party, and you will always vote about right. I am a Republican, but I shake hands with fraternal love with any Democrat who votes against that record. That kind of a Democrat is always a good enough Republican for me.

P. S.—I have never found that kind of a Democrat.

Alcoholic Consumption.

Dr. Richardson, F. R. S., of England, was the first to discover that while consumption, in the majority of cases, is due to a hereditary taint, or to impure air and bad surroundings, in a certain proportion of cases it is due solely to the drinking of alcoholic liquors.

He gathered his views from the careful study of two thousand cases in a hospital of which he was the physician. His discovery published by him in 1864 has been confirmed by other observers since.

The victims are in middle life, of great natural endurance, often models of organic symmetry and power, and active in mind and body. The very perfection of their organization makes them feel wholly safe in their indulgence. Though they can drink hard, they are not, in the ordinary sense, drunkards.

They look the picture of manly strength and robust health. Says Dr. Richardson: "More than half of those whom I have seen stricken down with alcoholic phthisic have said they had never had a day's illness in their lives, but when closely questioned it was found that none had recently been quite well."

The ailments, however, were such as the alcohol had already induced, an additional quantity of which had seemed to set them right again.

The countenance of the alcoholic consumptive differs as much from that of the ordinary consumptive, as it does from that of the confirmed sot. His face to the last seems full of health. Says our authority, "I remember being actually taken back on finding, in a man who seemed from his face in perfect health, a complete destruction of the lungs."

The disease is often developed after the person had for some time abandoned excessive indulgence—a point having been reached in which the excreting organs had exhausted their power to eliminate the poison from the system, and, as a consequence, the desire for the liquor had largely ceased.

The symptoms of the approaching consumption are pains in the side; then real pleurisy; after that, difficulty of filling the chest with air, the lungs having grown to the side; and at length, hemorrhage of the lungs, the walls of the engorged blood-vessels giving way. The result is often fatal.—Youth's Companion.

The Major's hottest action: Sub (to the Major, just returned from Egypt with the V. C.)—"By Jove, Major! you've seen some service. Which do you consider the hottest action you were ever in?" The Major—"One in the Queen's Bench years ago—for breach of promise."

Young Snifkins is so madly in love with Amelia Popinjay that when she confided to him the other day that she adored black eyes, he stole away and hired a stalwart young Irishman to decorate his countenance with those ornaments at fifty cents an eye.

Matting makes a handsome dado for a dining-room.

All Sorts.

Pale blue is a pleasing color for bed-rooms.

Stemless pansies strewn regularly over the cloth at the dinner table are attractive and look pretty.

Dinner dishes decorated with verses of poetry, maxims, conundrums, etc., are very interesting, and furnish the guests something to talk about.

In the domain of affection, if nowhere else, there must be absolute liberty. The slightest tyranny, even that of expectation, is fatal to the life of love.

Carving a fine art: Husband—"Mary, has the dog been at this meat?" Wife—"No, dear, I carved when you were away yesterday."—Harper's Bazar.

Women love to transfigure themselves with millinery, and men love to have them do so. It is the attempt on man's part to convert women to æsthetic uses.

Two hundred hair-pins were recently found in the stomach of a Long Island goat. It is supposed that he mistook a railroad switch for a lot of old iron scraps.

The DeCrusts say they have abandoned their proposed trip to Italy because of the cholera. They will simply go to Rome. The one in New York, not the Rome in Georgia.

"I am not dead, I am not dead!" sings a magazine poet. We don't blame the poet; we only blame the editor for not lugging him up a couple of stories higher before he flung him out.

"Ah, Mr. Hebbleton, I hear that you have been called to the ministry." "Well, I can hardly term it a call. They only offer me five hundred a year. Sort of a whisper, you understand."

"Don't you admire the range of of my mind?" asked a literary woman of her husband. "No," was the frank reply, "the kitchen range possesses a great deal more attraction for me."

One who doesn't dote on music: Mr. Smith—"Jones, I don't object to music, but when that dog of yours barks all night I think it a little too much." "Then you don't appreciate Offenbach?"—Life

According to Hoyle: A minister having preached the same discourse to his people three times one of his constant hearers said to him after service: "Doctor, the sermon you gave us this morning having had three separate readings, I move that it now be passed."

For the good of literature: Thirteen young ladies at one watering place are engaged on novels of American society. The announcement is not necessarily as disheartening as it appears on first sight, when we reflect that booksellers cannot be compelled to publish.

Household Hints.

Port wine jelly to be given to an invalid is made by dissolving one heaping teaspoonful of gelatine in one teacupful of wine; sweeten to suit the taste of the sick one for whom it is intended. This is said to be an excellent medicine for a cold, and may be given hot.

It is a good plan to vary the manner in which you flavor the roast of beef; this can be done by squeezing the juice of half a lemon over it and putting the other half inside the roast. Another way is to put half of a carrot, one small onion and a little parsley in the dripping pan and lay the roast over it. Do not be lead by any bad adviser to put one drop of water into your dripping pan until you have tried the experiment of roasting beef in this way. It makes a striking difference in the flavor of the meat. The outside browns over quickly, the juice is all kept within, and the meat is tender in consequence of this.

To crystalize oranges and nuts, take one cup of sugar, one small cup of water and the juice of one lemon. Let this boil until the syrup, when dropped from a spoon, looks like fine white hairs, and is brittle. Then dip small pieces of orange into this; lay them on buttered plates to dry. The whole meats of English walnuts are very nice crystalized in this way.

The Belle of the Branch.

There is a wondrous beauty at Long Branch according to several writers. Her name is Gloria Cespedes. She is a daughter of General Cespedes, who was killed about fourteen years ago in the Cuban revolution. Twins were born to the widow a few months after her patriot husband's death, and Miss Gloria is one of them. She is described as a most beautiful specimen of the pure Spanish type. Her face, while characteristic of her nationality, is more regular and delicate in its features than is usual among her countrywomen. Her hair is jet, her eyes large and lustrously soft, her complexion rich and clear, and her expression bright and amiable. Still more remarkable than her perfection of head is her faultlessness of figure, combining stateliness and grace in both carriage and pose. Whenever she appears among the dancers in a hotel parlor or the loungers on a veranda, there is nothing else to be looked at. She dresses in a childish fashion yet, and not with any adherance to Cuban styles, nor are her juvenile manners at all affected by the coquettishness common to the girls of Cuba. Her fan is not used in tropical tricks, and her eyes seem to know no other than honest witchery.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Governor Cleveland and Daniel Manning visited Mr. Tilden at Greystone yesterday, arriving by train from Albany. The Governor returned on the 4 o'clock train. It is said that his visit was in connection with his letter of acceptance, and that he had with him a rough draft of the letter.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS.

A FEW SIMPLE RHYMES FOR THE COOK.

Egg sauce—few make it right, alas!
Is good with bluefish or with bass.

Smelts require eggs and biscuit powder,
Don't put fat pork in your clam chowder.

Nice oyster sauce gives zest to cod—
A fish, when fresh, to feast a god.

In dressing salad mind the law—
With two hard yelks use one that's raw.

Shad, stuffed and baked, is most delicious;
'Twould have electrified Apicius,

To roast spring chickens is to spoil 'em.
Just split 'em down the back and broil 'em.

The cook deserves a hearty cuffing
Who serves roast fowl with tasteless stuffing

It gives true epicures the vapors
To see boiled mutton minus capers.

Roast veal with rich stock gravy serve,
And pickled mushrooms, too, observe.

The Political Pot Boiling.

MR. EDITOR: So far as local politics are concerned, our friends, the Democrats, are having things all their own way. They are like a troubled sea which has no rest, while Republicans look on with a calmness which almost betokens confidence. The scramble for office in which the "Unterrified" are engaging is much more exciting than when twenty New York Arabs scramble for a cent, and around the sheriffalty the amusing fight is in progress. Some of the candidates pursue their candidacy with a dignity which should entitle them to thorough respect while others resort to every expedient within the capacity of an average Democrat. Our handsome friend, Mr. Walker, is a prominent and promising candidate, and whatever votes he may or may not get, the votes of Bellefonte delegates will of course be given him, as his candidacy deserves. But a gentleman from the other side of the mountain, who is also a candidate, is endeavoring to obtain all the support he can from this section, and has to aid him plenty of money and strong friends. For instance, Messrs. James Cornelly, J. H. Keichline, Esq., and Ex-Mayor A. Sternberg and other statesmen are working for him with a devotion which knows of no defeat, and, if we may believe what they say, they are "roping in" the most eminently respectable and high-toned Democrats of this section. If what they say is true, Mr. Foust is the coming Democratic candidate for High Sheriff. But let us bide the 14th of August; perhaps the independent Democrats of this part of Centre county will pronounce a different verdict.

I have the honor to subscribe myself AN AMUSED DEMOCRAT.

—Since strawberry shortcake is out of season, says the Williamsport Banner, the housewife naturally turns to something which can fill the place. Lemon shortcake will do this in every respect and if your family likes a strong lemon flavor it will prove a delicious dish. Make a shortcake dough exactly like a strawberry shortcake. While that is baking grate the peel of a lemon and squeeze every drop of juice from it into a bowl; then take half a cup of sugar and half a cup of molasses, a teacupful of water, a little lump of butter and a tablespoonful of flour. Let this boil until it is just about as thick as boiled custard. When the shortcake is baked cut it in two parts and pour the mixture over the lower one; then lay the upper part on this, bottom side up, and cover that also with the custard.

THE use of light wines is advocated widely as the true cure for intemperance, and the countries of southern Europe have always been appealed to as evidence of its efficacy; but recent developments in the history of at least one nation held up as a proof of such logic has proven a veritable and disastrous boomerang. A few years ago, says the National Temperance Advocate, "the Chicago Tribune was very zealously advocating the use of light wines and beer as a remedy for intemperance. Total abstainers objected then as now, to the use of these lighter beverages as tending to develop an appetite for the stronger alcholics. Switzerland is a wine producing country with the very best opportunity to test the efficacy of light wines as a safeguard against intemperance. But now comes the Chicago Tribune with a wail that Switzerland has become the most drunken country in Europe."

Songs Never Sung.

"How does that verse run? Something like this, isn't it?

"There are who touch the magic string,
And noisy fame is proud to win them;
Alas! for those who never sing,
But die with all their music in them.'"

"Yes, that's beautiful, pathetic and true," said your representative. "The poet alludes to people who are somehow suppressed, and never get their full allowance of joy and air. Which reminds me of a letter shown me the other day by Hiscox & Co., of New York, signed by Mr E. C. Williams of Chapman, Snyder Co., Pa., a prominent business man of that place. He writes:

"'I have suffered with asthma for over forty years, and had a terrible attack in December and January, 1882. I hardly know what prompted me to take PARKER'S TONIC. I did so, and the first day I took four doses. The effect astonished me. That night I slept as if nothing was the matter with me, and have ever since. I have had colds since but no asthma. My breathing is now as perfect as if I had never known that disease. If you know of any one who has asthma tell him in my name that PARKER'S TONIC will cure it—even after forty years.'" There was a man who escaped the fate of those whom the poet laments.

This preparation, which has heretofore been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. Inasmuch as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, and unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all the bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC contain the genuine medicine if the fac simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper. 16 30 4t

How Watch Cases are Made

Imitation always follows a successful article, and imitation is one of the best proofs of real honest merit; and thus it is that the James Boss' Gold Watch Case has its imitators. Buyers can always tell the genuine by the trade-mark of a crown, from which is suspended a pair of scales. Be sure BOTH crown and TRADE MARK scales are stamped in the cap of the watch case. Jewelers are very cautious about endorsing an article unless they not only know that it is good, but that the character of the manufacturers is such that the quality of the goods will be kept fully up to standard.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA., Feb. 13, 1883.
The James Boss' Gold Watch Cases go like hot cakes. Each one I sell sells another. Don't need to recommend them; they sell themselves. One of my customers has had a James Boss' Gold Watch Case in use for 20 years, and it is as good as ever. With this case I do not hesitate to give my own guarantee, especially with the new and improved cases, which seem to be everlasting. JESSE T. LITTLE, Jeweler.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 8, 1883.
This gold case, No. 6666, known as the James Boss' Gold Watch Case, came into my possession about 1858, has been in use since that time, and is still in good condition. The movement is the one which was in the case when I bought it, and its condition shows that the case has really out-worn the movement, which is played out. MARTIN A. HOWELL,

The Republican for 50 Cents.

The most interesting political campaign which this country has ever experienced has just commenced. Every man, woman and child in Centre county should read a reliable newspaper, and as the REPUBLICAN is the only paper of that sort in Centre county we will offer it to all new subscribers from July 23 until December 10 for the low price of 50 cents, STRICTLY IN ADVANCE.

This reduction for this campaign is rendered more necessary by the fact that the recent Democratic legislature reduced the salaries of all employes and then stole money to pay themselves for extra and unnecessary time spent in—doing nothing; also because the Forty-eighth Congress refused necessary appropriations and reduced many others below their usual amount, and to add to their enormous crimes, attempted tariff legislation which prostrated business, closed factories, threw thousands of men out of employment and raised Cain generally. These Democratic measures have rendered many of our subscribers poorer than they otherwise would have been. Send in your names at once for the REPUBLICAN for the campaign of 1884.

Restored to Life by Lightning.

DAMASCUS, Pa., August 6.—Abraham Cuddeback, a highly respected citizen and merchant of this borough, was stricken by paralysis three months ago while attending church at this place. He was conveyed to his home and several physicians from New York and Philadelphia were summoned to his bedside, but all to no avail. His devoted wife was untiring in her efforts to aid him, and everything that surgical or medical aid could suggest was lavished upon the sufferer, but all to no purpose.

Three weeks ago the family, broken down in health and spirits, removed from this place to Matamoras, Pa., directly opposite Port Jervis, and a physician from the latter place was in constant attendance upon Mr. Cuddeback. Several weeks ago he lost his appetite, and he has been growing steadily weaker day by day until it was believed that the end was not far off.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

A terrific thunder-storm accompanied by the most vivid lightning prevailed in this section yesterday, and a house close by Mr. Cuddeback's was struck and the electric fluid came in at the open window of his house, and, striking him, threw him violently from a chair on which he was sitting to the floor. He lost consciousness and was on the floor in that state for some time, when his wife came in, and she raised him to a sitting posture and set about to restore him. This she succeeded in doing in a few moments, and what was her delight to discover that he had regained the use of his limbs and could talk and walk as naturally as ever. His appetite returned also, and now he eats his meals as usual and seems to enjoy them, too.

His case is exciting considerable interest among the physicians in this locality, and his happy family are the recipients of many congratulations over his miraculous recovery. The case is one of the most singular ever happening within the recollection of old physicians in this neighborhood, and a thorough investigation is soon to be made.

Rubenstein's Greatest Pupil Dead.

LONDON, August 7.—The musical world of Vienna is in mourning for one of its brightest stars. Among the many marvellous pianists whom the Queen of the Danube has produced, none were more promising than Ernest Lowenberg, a pupil of Rubenstein, of whom his friends prodicted that he would rival the greatest masters when his powers had reached their maturity. He recently returned from Russia, where he had given a series of performances at St. Petersburg and other towns, with a success that has laid the foundation of a European reputation. But in the course of his professional engagements he contracted a severe cold which settled on his lungs, and he returned home to die in the arms of his friends at the age of only 28 years.

Earthquake Shocks.

YORK, Pa., August 10.—A shock of earthquake was perceptibly felt in this city about 2.15 p. m. Houses and furniture were shaken and dishes rattled.

WILMINGTON, August 10.—An earthquake shock was felt here at 1.57 this afternoon which shook outbuildings all over the city. The direction of the movement was about 10 degrees north of east.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., August 10.—Three distinct shocks of earthquake were felt here to-day at exactly 2.09 p. m. There was no noise accompanying them, but the effect was very marked without being damaging.

HARRISBURG, Pa., August 10.—A slight shock of earthquake was felt in this city this afternoon preceded by a slow rumbling noise. No damage of any kind has been reported, but houses were shaken. Small articles rolled from shelves.

LANCASTER, August 10.—A distinct shock of earthquake was felt in this city shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. Buildings were slightly shaken, but there was no particular alarm. In Columbia two distinct shocks were felt.

CHESTER, Pa., August 10.—This city was badly shaken about 2.15 o'clock this afternoon by what is generally believed to have been an earthquake. Several chimneys were thrown down, plaster was torn from the walls and earthenware broken.

EASTON, August 10.—A shock resembling that of an earthquake was felt throughout the Lehigh Valley this afternoon. In this city houses were shaken and three chimneys were overturned. Many people were frightened and ran screaming into the street.

READING, Pa., August 10.—At 2.12 this afternoon two distinct shocks of an earthquake were felt throughout this city and county, shaking houses, moving furniture and dropping blinds. Considerable excitement prevailed among the people, many running into the streets. Reports from intermediate points between Allentown, Lebanon, Pottsville, Phœnixville and Pottstown say a shock was felt there.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., August 10.—Two very distinct shocks of earthquake were felt here shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. There was a general rocking of houses, and in some instances the motion was so violent as to throw persons sleeping on lounges upon the floor. Many of the residents were greatly startled and the shocks are the general topic of conversation to-day. A party of gentlemen who were playing "poker" in a club-room rushed into the street, hatless and coatless, under the impression that an attempt had been made to wreck the building. A brick chimney also fell to the ground under the influence of the shocks.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 10.—For the first time since January 8, 1817, a very perceptible shock of an earthquake was felt in this city at 9:02 this afternoon. It was of about ten seconds duration and undulation, apparently extended from northeast to southwest, increasing in intensity with each second and subsiding gradually. The strongest buildings were shaken, and every house in the city was agitated more or less, their occupants making into the street thinking a horrible explosion had occurred. Many chimneys toppled over, and in some instances the people were thrown upon the floors of their dwellings. The shipping was likewise affected by the shock. Large ships loaded with petroleum in the Schuylkill river snapped their hawsers and were with difficulty prevented from going ashore. Several large steamers were thrown strongly against the wharves in the lower section of the city and crews thrown out of their bunks. Huge waves, backed by rising tide, overflowed many wharves and considerable property was flooded. Deeply laden steamers lying in the Delaware trembled without apparent injury during the shock.

NEW YORK, August 10.—About 2.05 o'clock this afternoon the residents in this vicinity were startled by a severe shock of earthquake, lasting about ten seconds. At this hour, 10 p. m., particulars have been received at the Western Union office here, showing that the shock was wide spread, extending from Portland, Me., along the coast to Philadelphia and Cleveland in the west. The reports as to its duration are diverse, but the average seems to be about ten seconds. So far as heard, there has been no serious destruction of property. The vibration was from north to south.

Another dispatch says there was considerable excitement in all parts of the city to-day occasioned by the shock of the earthquake. The greatest excitement prevailed in the Jewish and Bohemian quarters on the east side. The houses, which are mostly high and lightly constructed tenements, were violently shaken and terrified inmates rushed into the streets carrying with them whatever of their household effects they could move. Children screaming with fright were borne out by their parents who were no less panic stricken, into the centre of the street. In Ludlow, between Hester and the canal, the panic was at its height. Women were shrieking and children crying and men either swearing or praying. This was kept up for nearly half an hour when the commotion finally subsided and the police persuaded the people to return to their houses.

Fails to Beat His Record.

BUFFALO, August 8.—At the driving park to-day Jay-Eye-See was driven to beat his record of 2:10, and trotted the mile in 2:10¼. When it was considered that the track was not in the best possible condition, and that there was a cool air and light breeze against him his performance is truly a remarkable one.

A Heavy Iron Failure.

Special to the Altoona Morning Tribune.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., August 8.—This morning a judgment for $132,726 was confessed by the Kemble coal and iron company in favor of Nimic & Co., iron brokers, of Pittsburg. This is one of the largest industrial establishments in Pennsylvania, and has employed several thousand men. Its principal furnaces are located at Riddlesburg, Bedford county, on the line of the Huntingdon and Broad Top railroad, and are the best equipped in the state. The company is an old one and has always ranked among the foremost in financial circles. The cause of the failure is attributed to the depression in the iron market. Messrs. Chamberlin & Sloane, of New York, entered a mortgage yesterday against the works for $200,000. The mortgage was given in 1870 to secure the bondholders. The labor claims amount to about $60,000, being for wages due for June and July. There are numerous other claims which aggregate about $160,000, but at this hour no definite knowledge of the claimants can be obtained. The news of the failure was received here with alarm, as the company was considered one of the strongest. It is feared that a number of dependent companies may be effected thereby and the people are apprehensive of serious financial results. A number of other furnaces in Huntingdon and Bedford counties are running to their fullest capacity simply to afford their men employment, and this failure, it is feared, may effect their standing and cause a general suspension. The available resources of the company are roughly estimated at $350,000.

Result of the Shooting.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., August 8.—In the brigade match this afternoon at 200 and 500 yards the Third brigade team scored 642 out of possible 840 The score of the First brigade was 627, and of the Second 560. Following are the individual scores of Third brigade team: Corporal McMillan, 57; Privates Tarry, 52; Wilke, 48; Captain G. B. Thompson, 58; Blatter, 55; Sergeant Lawser, 51; Lieutenant Henwood, 47; Private J. C. Huntingdon, 56; Corporal Chase, 62; Sergeant Pratt, 57.

At 4.20 this afternoon the Thirteenth regiment was drawn up in front of the division headquarters and each member of their successful team was presented with a silver badge and a silver urn was confided to the keeping of the regiment by the governor. The governor then reviewed the entire division, the review ending in pouring rain. The camp is breaking up and by to morrow all will be on their way home. The First brigade will remain until Sunday morning.

The Maine Encampment of the G. A. R.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., August 7.—It is estimated that 25,000 persons, including 5,000 old soldiers, are here to-day to attend the encampment of the Grand Army. Most of the visitors attended Blaine's public reception in the old Orchard House. Blaine stood in the centre of the parlor and the crowd passed in single file and shook hands with Blaine and Governor Robie. The reception ended at noon.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

Pennsylvania Game Laws.

Our excellent correspondent, "Web," of Loveville, requests us to publish the Pennsylvania Game Laws, which we fortunately are able to do. They were compiled in the form printed below by the Williamsport Sun and Banner, and are said to be accurate. During the time between the dates given the game can be killed, to which the fine is attached for illegal hunting or fishing:

BIRDS.

Wild turkeys, October 1 to January 1, $10; duck, September 1 to January 1, $10; woodcock, July 4 to January 1, $10; quail or partridge, October 15 to January 1, $10; ruffed or pinnoted grouse, October 1 to January 1, $10; rail and reed birds, September 1 to December 1, $5.

ANIMALS.

Elk and deer, October 1 to December 1, $50; squirrels, September 1 to January 1, $5; hares and rabbits, November 1 to January 1, $5.

FISH.

Salmon or speckled trout, April 1 to August 1, $10; lake trout, October 1 to January 1, $10; black bass, pike and pickerel, June 1 to January 1, $10.

The act of Assembly further provides in the case of deer that at no time is it lawful for dogs to chase deer; nor is it lawful at any time to kill fawns with spotted coats.

—Javan Emory is now with the Harvey Fisher base ball nine, of Duncannon, and as usual is doing excellent work. Since he has connected himself with the Harvey Fishers that club has played two games with the Lock Haven nine, and, although from lack of adequate support the Harvey Fishers lost both games, Emory's playing was very creditable and compared favorably with that of Fry who catches for the Lock Haven nine. Both catchers put out eight men and had five passed balls, but Emory had no errors while Fry had three. Emory will accompany the Harvey Fishers on an extended tour and, if invited to come to Bellefonte, the club will probably be able to accept.

The Last Tribute of Respect.

On Saturday, the 9th instant, there assembled at the residence of Mr. George Cornelius the populace of the surrounding community, for the purpose of paying the final tribute of respect to one who was formerly a resident of Loveville—Mrs. Sarah Ebbs, wife of Mr. Jeremiah Ebbs. The inclemency of the weather deterred none from gathering around the remains of one who stood high in the estimation of all, for the house was filled with condoling and sympathising friends. Within the room where the body reposed an air of profound solemnity reigned. The coffin was of black walnut, ornamented with silver mountings. On the centre of the lid was a richly engraved silver plate of circular form, on which was inscribed the words, "Our Mother." Surrounding the plate was a floral wreath of beautiful design. All was simply yet tastefully arranged, and the effect was to make the dead look so life-like and peaceful as to greatly comfort those who came to take a last look. The minister engaged to conduct the services at the house being unavoidably detained, Mr. Thomas Rook performed that duty quite impressively, after which the assemblage repaired to the M. E. church of Centre Line where funeral services were held by Rev. Geo. Bouse, pastor in charge. The exercises were opened by the reading of selected passages of Scripture after which was sung the hymn:

"Why should we start and fear to die;
What timorous worms we mortals are," followed by prayer, an invocation that was truly comforting to the grief-bowed souls. The first clause of the 14th verse, 14th chap. of Job, "If a man die shall he live again?" formed the basis of the remarks made. The discourse was able and solemn and fell as a healing balm on the rent hearts of the afflicted ones. Speaking of the departed, he said, "Were no marble slab erected to mark her resting place it would not be forgotten, but would ever be fresh in the memory of all. She has reared her own monument. Her teachings and her life as a true Christian were fully exemplified in her death. She died in the triumphs of a living faith. Her last hours were hours of peace and joy. Almost with her expiring breath she sang, 'Nearer, my God, to Thee.' As a Christian she lived; as a conqueror she died, and as one of the faithful shall reap her reward." After the close of the services the procession moved to the Lutheran Cemetery at Centre Line where the remains were interred according to the rites of the M. E. church—and thus goeth to her rest one honored and beloved by all.

She died at the age of 53 years 1 month and 10 days, the cause of her death being hemorrhage of the bowels. Her home when she died was at Brisbin, Clearfield county. She was sick but one week. The attack was so severe that three of the most eminent physicians of Clearfield county were summoned but without avail, and on Thursday morn, the 7th inst., her spirit took its flight.

She leaves a husband and four children to mourn her death. In her the husband lost an affectionate wife and companion, the children a kind mother and counselor. The writer begs to tender not only his own, but the sympathy of the entire neighborhood to the bereaved ones. WEB.

Death of a Philipsburg Physician.

Dr. J. C. Thompson, of Philipsburg, formerly a practicing physician at Bells Mills, died in the latter place at 2.30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon from injuries received earlier in the day. The Bells Mills correspondent of the Altoona Tribune gives the following account of the accident and death:

The deceased arose about 4 o'clock in the morning, intending to take the early train to Lloydsville, but in his haste to catch the departing train, tripped and fell, striking his head on the rail and cutting a gash above his left eye, which bled profusely. He was taken from the place of the accident to the residence of Mr. Silas Moore, where he was made comfortable, and Dr. Laird was called in, who at once pronounced it a severe case of concussion of the brain, which was followed by convulsions in quick succession, until death came to his relief and Dr. Thompson was no more. The deceased was about thirty-two years of age, and was born and raised at Eden Hill, Huntingdon county. He came to Bellwood about the year 1875 and studied medicine under Dr. Clark of Tyrone. When Dr. Clark moved from here, about the year 1881, Dr. Thompson took charge of the practice thus left vacant and held it till within one year ago, when he moved to Philipsburg and began to build up a practice there in which we are informed he was more than ordinarily successful. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn their loss, one boy about five years old and the other less than one year." He will be buried at Birmingham at 1.30 o'clock this (Monday) afternoon. His mother and two sisters reside at that place and his remains were taken there on Saturday evening.

—Plentiful rains visited this section on Saturday and Sunday.

—The excursion from this place to Snow Shoe on Tuesday, August 19 will cost only 65 cents for a round trip ticket if 250 persons can be secured to accompany it. The excursion is not exclusively for the G. A. R., but everybody is invited. We believe that not only 250 but at least 1000 will desire to avail themselves of this wonderfully cheap and desirable excursion. The advantages and attractions of the ride as well as the health giving properties of the air at the lofty height of Snow Shoe summit are so well understood as not to need special reference.

—Messrs. Thayer, Merriam & Co., of Philadelphia, have in press the "Lives of Cleveland and Hendricks," by Chauncy F. Black, Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania. This work will be the most thorough and complete of any published, containing a complete history of the Democratic party. The same house will issue the "Lives of Blaine and Logan," the Republican standard-bearers, the book containing besides a vast amount of valuable politcal matter. See advertisement in this issue.

—Mr. E. J. Swavely, the tall and graceful local editor of the Democrat, has retired from that position although we have not seen in that paper any words of adieu to the readers whom he has served so brilliantly. We shall doubtless hear from E. J. soon again as he is a gentleman of decided energy and ability.

For the Campaign.

The Philadelphia Weekly Press will be sent by mail till after the November election for 25 cents. The Daily Press for 50 cents per month.

Why they Call Him "Old Man."

"Yes, that's sadly so," said Jenkins, "my hair is turning gray and falling out before its time. Use something? I would, but most hair restorers are dangerous." "True," answered his wife, "but Parker's Hair Balsam is as harmless as it is effective. I've tried it, and know. Give the Balsam a show and the boys will soon stop calling you 'Old Man Jenkins.'" It never fails to restore the original color to gray or faded hair. Richly perfumed, an elegant dressing.

Extreme Tired Feeling.

A lady tells us "the first bottle has done my daughter a great deal of good, her food does not distress her now, nor does she suffer from that extreme tired feeling which she did before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." A second bottle effected a cure. No other preparation contains such a concentration of vitalizing, enriching, purifying and invigorating properties as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The August number of Wide-Awake contains much choice vacation reading for the young folks, with many artistic engravings. Lungren, a leader among American illustrators, has seldom drawn so beautiful a picture as "Little Pixy People," which forms the frontispiece and illustrates James Whitcomb Riley's musical poem of the same title. Almost as fanciful are Brennan's three drawings for "The Meadow Princess," by Miss Poulsson. The opening story is for girls, and is an excellent one in its lessons; it is written by Mrs. Frances A. Humphry, and is entitled "A Modern Kate Barlass." The boys have in their turn an amusing hunting story by F. A. Stealey, called "Oasio." A long English paper by Mrs. Raymond Blathwayte about "Our Royal Neighbors at Sandringham," is quite as interesting reading as any story, for both old and young, giving as it does many sunshiny glimpses of the Prince of Wales and his family. It is illustrated from photographs of the young Princesses of Wales. Edward Everett Hale talks with his club of young folks about the preliminaries of Presidential elections. Miss Phelps concludes her serial story, "A Brave Girl," with a masterly chapter. Mr. Talbot prepares for some startling fun in his first installment of "Masks off," and Mr. Brooks takes Ruthie farther on into the exciting mysteries of "No-Man's Land." The Chautauqua Department is very rich and full in all its series. Only $3.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston, Mass.

The August, or midsummer holiday number of the Century is a most excellent number, its contents consisting of a very pleasing variety. "A glance at British Wild Flowers," by John Burroughs, will interest many readers, particularly the ladies. The illustrations are beautiful. Alexander Hynds writes about Gen. Sam Houston, of whom a fine portrait is given. Other leading articles are: "Recent Architecture in America"—third paper, "Carmen Sylva, Queen of Roumania," by Helen Zimmern, "An Effect in Yellow," by Ivory Black, "On the Track of Ulysses," W. J. Stillman, "A New England Winter"—first paper—by Henry James. Frank R. Stocktonjhas a remarkable tale entitled "The Remarkable Wreck of the 'Thomas Hyke,'" equaling Jules Verne's best efforts. The department devoted to "Topics of the Time," "Open Letters" and "Bric-a-brac" are full of solid and interesting matter. The CENTURY Co., Union Square, New York City.

The North American Review for August contains an article by Justice James V. Campbell on "The Encroachments of Capital" which will command the serious attention of all readers. Richard A. Proctor treats of "The Origin of Comets." "Are we a Nation of Rascals?" is the startling title of an article by John F. Hume, who shows that states, counties and municipalities in the United States have already formally repudiated, or defaulted in the payment of interest on, an amount of bonds and other obligations equal to the sum of the national debt. Judge Edward C. Loring finds a "Drift Toward Centralization" in recent action of the United States Supreme Court. Julian Hawthorne writes of "The American Element in Fiction," and there is a symposium on "Prohibition and Persuasion," by Neal Dow and Dr. Dio Lewis.

The boys, and girls as well, will find much valuable and interesting reading in the August number of St. Nicholas. The opening article, 'Old Ship and the Central Park Sheep," by Franklin H. North, handsomely illustrated, will be found full of interest and instruction. Helen Campbell contributes an entertaining little sketch entitled The "S. F. B. P.," and older readers will be interested in "How we were burned out in Constantinople," by Oscanyan. Other prominent papers are "Frieda's Doves," by Blanche W. Howard, "The Little House in the Garden," by Louisa M. Alcott, "A Yankee Boy's Adventures at the Sea Side," by Spencer Borden, "The Artist of Woody Dell," poem, by Rev. Charles Talbot, "Origin and History of Paper," by Chas. E. Bolton. "Mervin and the Boy Hunters" is continued, the other departments are full of live matter. The Century Co., Union Square, New York.

Lines from Loveville.

LOVEVILLE, Aug. 7, 1884.

Moonlight nights are now in order.

The oats are now being cut and gathered into the barns.

It is said that the wild turkeys are quite numerous on Muncy mountain.

One of the fair ladies visiting in Loveville at present is Miss Mayes of Clearfield.

The Central Academy commenced the fall term of eight weeks on Monday, the 4th inst.

Mr. Whippo, the blacksmith, is constantly adding improvements to his shop in the way of machinery, etc.

Mr. H. C. Love, one of Tyrone's most enterprising hardware merchants, smiled serenely on our village on Friday, the 1st inst.

Mr. John H. Gates, formerly of Centre Line but now of Williamsburg, Blair county, returned here last week in order to accompany the military company, of which he is a member, to the encampment at Gettysburg.

Miss Rachel Wright, of Floradale, Franklin county, this State, arrived in this place on Saturday last. She came for the purpose of teaching a select school at Centre Line. Having taught in this community for years, she has an established reputation as a first-class instructress.

For years back there has been a violation of the game laws in this vicinity, especially in the killing of squirrels and other small game out of season, parties committing the violation always giving some worthless excuse as their reason. Now we think it time that such violation be stopped, and not knowing the season for killing such game, we would like to have it published in the REPUBLICAN; then hereafter, sportsmen, beware lest you hear from us.

And now, Mr. Editor, I come with an item this week that is the first of the kind that has found place in our lines. It is one of "Cupid's pranks," or the taking leave of the state of "single blessedness" to enter the "matrimonial state." The contracting parties were Mr. Frank Cupp, of Centre Line, and Miss Mary M. Vawn, of Bald Eagle Valley. They were married on Tuesday, the 5th inst. May their voyage down the matrimonial tide be one continued stream of happiness, and everlasting bliss be the portion of their wedded life.

Your correspondent was this week shown a relic that has almost a romance connected with it and which is worthy of being kept on record. It is a silver dollar made in the year 1800 and in the possession of Mr. William Mayes of Clearfield. It appears that William's father, Mr. Thos. Mayes, when a boy, was presented with two silver dollars, both of the above-named date, as mementoes of the year of his birth, he being born in that year. Some time prior to the father's death he gave one to his son James and one to William. Years ago James unfortunately lost the one given him but William was more fortunate and still retains the one bestowed on him, displaying it as a memento of the year of his father's birth.

I have nothing wherewith to make a pun this week so will close with saying peas (peace) be with you. I am, &c., WEB.

Base Ball at Camp Gettysburg.

CAMP GETTYSBURG, August 5, 1884.

This afternoon two nines, one selected from company G, of Lewistown, and the other from Company B of Bellefonte, played a most interesting and very close game of ball, resulting in favor of Bellefonte by a score of 4 to 1 (9 innings). The game was won strictly on its merits. At about 2 o'clock quite a large crowd composed of soldiers and visitors, many of the latter being ladies, assembled at a portion of the present parade ground where Pickett made the final charge on the 6th army corps. Company G won the toss and sent their opponents to the bat. On the first inning a double and single base hit in succession earned one run for Company B. A muff by the 1st baseman gave the Lewistowns their solitary run, as the Bellefontes presented them with eight nice nest eggs. At the end of the fifth inning the score stood 2 to 1; but by careful and excellent playing the Co. B nine increased its score by two runs, holding the Co. G nine down to one run, Keller, exchange catcher and short stop; Hughes pitcher; Crawford, 1st base; Yeager, 2d base; Harris, 3d base; Scribner, short stop and exchange catcher; Swartz, left field; Bathurst, centre field and Rees, right field, constituted the victorious nine. The playing of every man on the nine was as good as could be desired, and the playing of Scribner was exceptionally fine in his throwing, fielding and batting. The out fielders had but one ball which was captured neatly by centre field. Rees astonished himself as well as the nine by his wonderful batting. In favor of the Lewistown nine it must be said that their playing was equally good, as the score shows, but they were not so strong at the bat as the Bellefonters. The umpire was entirely impartial. Time of game was one hour and 30 minutes. Errors about five each. The game was closed just in time for the grand review of troops by Generals Hartranft, Sigfried and Beaver. The same nines expect to play again to-morrow. X.

"Boys in Blue."

GETTYSBURG, Aug. 7th, '84.

ED. DAILY NEWS: Camp is progressing finely under the highest authority our republic offers, inasmuch as we had with us Maj. Gen. Phil H. Sheridan, Secretary of War Lincoln, Gov. Pattison, General Hartranft and many other dignitaries. General Sheridan reviewed the Guards on Wednesday evening and a finer spectacle in military circles was never before witnessed on the ground—save twenty years ago. Co. B, under the command of Captain Amos Mullen, is a credit to the National Guard by their obedience to duty, while in camp, and gentlemanly deportment when excused.

The culinary department of Co. B is under the supervision of Messrs. Musser and McEwen of Unionville and Sergt. Philips, of Bellefonte, who has charge of the commissary, and by their obliging dispositions and a thorough knowledge of the wants of the inner man, render the most perfect satisfaction and have gained the respect of the whole company. Corporal H. D. VanPelt, of Brigade Headquarters, finding the boarding too rich at said place, was compelled to retire to company quarters to prepare for higher rations—requisite time twenty-four hours. Jno. W. Barnhart is becoming homesick and is expected to desert at any moment. A leading musician of Co. B Regimental staff uses most any word for a "countersign" and trusts to leg bail for the balance.

The Fifth regiment generally, under the command of Col. D. H. Hastings, is one of the best equipped and has already been called upon to quiet rising riots and keep order in the brigade.

McMillen has won laurels and expects to go on the retired list with increased pay henceforth. FENCIBLE.

Extract from a Letter.

We are in receipt of several letters from our numerous friends in Camp Gettysburg all of which we cannot publish in full. From one received Friday morning we can take only the following extract which has special reference to our Bellefonte representation there:

"During the review the officers of the Fifth regiment presented quite a striking appearance. Col. Hastings, mounted on his fierce looking steed riding at the head of his regiment, drew many complimentary remarks from the bystanding audience. The Colonel's staff all present a fine appearance in their uniforms. Captain Amos Mullen and Lieut. Geissinger are competent officers and the members of Company B have perfect confidence in them, and feel assured that if they obey commands the Company will make a favorable impression. As for rations, there is no difficulty in procuring all of the delicacies of the season, but the boys prefer to take regular army rations. Everything is well prepared."

Medical

PURE IS THE ABSOLUTE NECESSITY OF HEALTH. BLOOD

THE marvellous results of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA upon all humors and low conditions of the blood (as proven by the cures effected) prove it the best BLOOD MEDICINE. Such has been the success of this article at home that nearly every family in whole neighborhoods have been taking it at the same time. It eradicates scrofula, vitalizes and enriches the blood, thereby restoring and renovating the whole system. Hood's SARSAPARILLA purifies the blood. Hood's SARSAPARILLA cures dyspepsia. Hood's SARSAPARILLA cures biliousness. A peculiar point in Hood's SARSAPARILLA is that it builds up and strengthens the system, while it eradicates disease, and as nature's great assistant proves itself invaluable as a protection from diseases that originate in changes of the seasons, of climate and of life.

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

—o—

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

A Puddler's Good Fortune.

PITTSBURG, August 6.—John B. Sheridan, a puddler, residing off Fourteenth street, Ninth ward, has fallen heir to a fortune estimated at one-half a million of dollars in value and he left for Wheeling this morning to consult with his brother and two sisters, in response to a letter from them. In speaking of the matter he said. "Yesterday morning I received a letter from my brother, in Wheeling, in which he said that a legacy of two million dollars had been left my mother and her heirs by an aunt of mine, who died in England a short time ago, and that the heirs had been advertised for. I have a brother and two sisters in Wheeling, who will share the inheritance. It appears that my brother had heard of the matter some time ago, and had given the matter into the hands of Lawyer Cowden, of Wheeling, before notifying me. I have always known that I had an aunt somewhere in England, but I did not know she was wealthy. Her name was Mrs. Helen Blake and she was a sister of my father. My brother wrote me in the letter that my presence would be desirable in Wheeling, and I leave in the morning." Sheridan said he had been drinking for sometime, but now that good fortune had overtaken him he would not drink another drop.

At Camp Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., August 5.—The sanitary condition of the camp is remarkably good. Out of about 8,000 men in camp only 130 were reported on the sick list this morning, all of them with trifling ailments. A number of cases of sun prostration were reported but all recovered within half an hour. To-day the First, Second, Fifth and Eighth regiments and battery A were inspected. At target practice to day three rounds at 200 yards showed gratifying results. Rifle practice at 200, 500 and 600 yards will begin to-morrow for the selection of eleven teams to take part in the regimental match Thursday, and brigade match on Friday. This evening the First and Second brigades made dress parades, and were reviewed by Governor Pattison and General Hartranft. It is now said that General Sheridan will arrive here Wednesday morning. It was decided to-day to erect three tablets on Culp's Hill, making the position of Knapp's battery and the Twenty-eighth and One Hundred and Forty-seventh Pennsylvania ragiments. They will be dedicated at the next reunion which will be held on the first Tuesday in October, 1885. Weather has been clear during the day, but it is raining to-night.

A Vessel Sinks in the Thames.

LONDON, August 4.—Particulars of the collision and sinking of the steamer Dione in the Thames on Saturday night state there were a great many pleasure passengers on board the vessel. It was a clear, moonlight night. The collision occurred about midnight with the large iron steamer Camden, just off Gravesend. The Dion's port side was stove in, and the vessel keeled over and sank in two minutes. Those saved rushed on deck, jumped overboard, half dressed, and were rescued by tugs. The scenes were heartrending. Ladies implored men to save their children. Many women were carrying infants. One mother, who placed her infant on a floating crate, saw it drift away, but found it later off Thames Haven. The infant was alive. The captain of the Dione was saved, but badly hurt.

The Pennsylvania Militia Complimented.

GETTYSBURG, PA., August 6.—Shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon General Sheridan and Secretary Lincoln with General Hartranft and staff inspected the entire line of 8,000 troops in camp here, after which the line passed in review, taking an hour to pass. Colonel Black, of the United States army, who was detailed by the war department to visit the camp, highly complimented the appearance and movements of the militia, and General Sheridan pronounced it the finest review seen since the disbanding of the army of the Potomac. The camp was brilliantly illuminated to-night by electric light and concerts were given at each of the brigade headquarters. The morning was occupied in artillery practice, target shooting, drills, inspections and camp routine.

Suspected Kidnappers Discharged.

WEST CHESTER, August 5.—The men who were arrested by Chief of Police Shields last night, on suspicion of having stolen Arthur, son of Thomas Grant, and Harry, son of William Brock, both of this borough, were given a hearing this morning. The men gave the names of Charles Striker, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Thomas Gordon, who did not appear to live in any place. The District Attorney closely examined the men, who denied any intent at kidnapping, and said they found the children wandering beyond the Eastern limits of the borough, and that they only took them in charge, as night was approaching, so that they might not be lost. As no case could be made out against them, they were discharged.

National Civil Service Association.

NEWPORT, R. I., August 6.—The Fourth annual meeting of the National Civil Service Association was held here to-day. An address by George William Curtis was listened to with wrapt attention, only interrupted by frequent and enthusiastic applause.

Beecher's Politics.

TOPEKA, Kan., August 4.—A prominent politician of this city has received a private letter from the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, in which he intimates that he has about concluded to oppose the election of Governor Cleveland as president. The letter was not intended for publication, being of an ordinary friendly character, but has been seen by your correspondent and others in this city. The portion referring to Cleveland is as follows: "I fear that I will have to give up Cleveland. The pastors are making such vigorous attacks upon his moral character, and with such apparent truth and justice, that I cannot consistently indorse his candidacy. I regret that such developments have come to light, for I felt assured that he was the proper man for the place, and that his election would give us a better administration than Mr. Blaine's would be. There is an acknowledged demand for administrative reform which I believed Cleveland's election fully promised, but the country is so big and prosperous that it can sustain no injury from Mr. Blaine's elevation to the presidency. I am giving the subject the most careful consideration, and will act as my best judgment dictates.

Dragged to Death.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, August 5.—Near the Ranche place yesterday, Louis Trevano, a wealthy Mexican, while dismounting from his horse, caught his foot in the stirrup. The horse became frightened, began plunging and kicking Trevano on the head, making him insensible. The animal then ran, dragging the prostrate man along the road for a mile. The lifeless body finally became disentangled while the horse went on homeward. Trevano's son seeing the riderless animal at the gate, mounted his own horse and started to search for his father. Coming upon the mangled body, mutilated beyond recognition, except by its clothing, young Trevano was so overcome that he shot himself in the head. The servants found the son in the last agonies of death, lying beside his father's corpse, fondly embracing it. The father and son were celebrated for their horsemanship, and owned valuable horses at Brazos de Santiago.

Three Fires.

NEW YORK, August 4.—At midnight the Pennsylvania Railroad depot at Jersey City is completely enveloped in flames and will be destroyed with all its contents. The firemen and employes, owing to the great heat and rapid spread of the fire, could not save much property, while the tug boats for some reason were kept away from the ferry boats that were tied up. These must also be destroyed. Piers are also ablaze and with these must go whatever freight may be upon them. The fire is a large one and the loss will be very heavy.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 4.—During a heavy thunder storm this evening the barn of M. L. Bellows, near Gwynedd, Montgomery county, was struck by lightning and with its contents was totally destroyed. Loss, $30,000; insurance, $18,000.

PHILADELPHIA, August 4.—Fire at Baldwin's locomotive works to-night caused a lost of $150,000. Insurance unknown

New Arrivals at Gettysburg Camp.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., August 4.—Governor Pattison and staff arrived at camp this afternoon escorted by the Sheridan troop under Captain Jones. At the entrance to camp the party was received by the Tyrone cavalry and escorted to division head quarters, where they were received by General Hartrantt and staff and saluted by the artillery. This morning the Fifth and Tenth Regiments and Battery B were inspected by Adjutant-General Guthrie. The number of visitors to-day was very large and all were favorably impressed with the splendid appearance of the military. The air was very perceptibly cooled to-day by several heavy showers. General Sheridan is expected here to-morrow and with General Hancock and Secretary Lincoln will review the troops on Wednesday. At target practice of the First Brigade to-day the Sixth Regiment carried off the laurels.

Democratic Losses in Alabama.

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 4.—The State and county elections in Alabama passed off quietly so far as is reported and there being one State ticket headed by Governor E. A. O'Neil, the result can be anticipated. In several counties there were independent candidates for county offices which have been defeated, except here in Mobile where the Independents, by the help of colored voters, have obtained a large majority over the regular Democracy.

Distinguished Auditors.

SARATOGA, August 3.—The Rev. Dr. J. P. Newman of New York preached here this morning to a large congregation. Among the many prominent people present were the Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks, the Hon. David Davis, the Hon. George S. Batchellor, William H. Vanderbilt, and W. A. Turnbull.

Going to Augusta.

BAR HARBOR, August 3.—Mr. Blaine leaves to-morrow morning for Augusta. He has not yet decided about attending the convention at Lake Maranacook or the reunion at Old Orchard. Among the arrivals yesterday were Recorder Franklin Smyth, of New York, and General George B. McClellan.

Northern Ohio Crops.

COLUMBUS, August 5.—Secretary Chamberlain, of the state board of agriculture, who has returned from a trip through northern Ohio reports the crops in good condition. The drought has been a long and severe one, but the rains of the past week have served to bring out the grain and fruit finely. In some of the counties the rain lasted three or four days steadily, and the effect has been wonderful. The corn is now forward more than it was at this time last year and there is every promise of a good yield. Farmers all over the section of the country visited by Mr. Chamberlain report that the wheat, so far as threshed, is yielding better than was expected and the quality is very good. Oats are nearly all cut and housed.

A Burglary at DuBois.

DUBOIS, Aug. 5.—The house of Andrew Pentz, a well-to-do farmer, aged 73 years, two miles from this place, was entered last night by four burglars. The thieves went to Mr. Pentz's about eight o'clock, when no one but himself and wife were in the house, and terrorized both of them with revolvers and knives. A bureau drawer was broken open and about $100 in cash, notes valued at $700 or $800, a watch, revolver, etc., taken. G. F. Milliron, Walter Woodward, D. L. Hetrick and James McLean, all of this place, have been arrested for the offense. They had a hearing this afternoon and were held in the sum of $1000 each.

PARIS, August 6.—The Figaro states that Admiral Courdet has been ordered to bombard Foo Chow arsenel to-morrow unless the garrison surrenders.

TANGIERS, August 6.—The sultan of Morrocco has caused the massacre of a whole tribe in Augora Kabila because they asked for French protection. The men were killed and the women and children made slaves. Five thousand men from different tribes have gathered to attack the cherif of Anadzan, and war with the French is probable.

An Impressive Ceremony.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., August 5.—Solemn and impressive ceremony of conferring white and black veils upon thirty-four ladies from various parts of the United States and Germany took place at St. Nicholas' Catholic cathedral this afternoon. Father Nagle, of Wilkesbarre, assisted by Father Schelle, of Scranton, officiated in the absence of Bishop O'Hara, who was unable to be present. Twenty of the ladies entered upon novitiate of two years, the others the vows.

Died for Love.

TROY, N. Y., August 5.—I. Knicker bocker Griswold, a salesman in a prominent dry goods store here, committed suicide by shooting last evening. He left letters attributing his deed to domestic trouble. To his aunt and cousin, with whom he resided, he wrote: "Try and forgive me as I forgive the woman I once loved," meaning his wife, from whom he had separated. Griswold was 22 years of age.

Dynamite in a London Letter Box.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Three packages of dynamite, wrapped in the Irishman newspaper, were found in a letter box at the Nottingham postoffice on Sunday night. They contained a pound of dynamite, with a fuse, to which a cap was attached. It is supposed the packages were intended to explode by falling or when stamped upon. The quantity of dynamite was sufficient to wreck the building.

LONDON, August 3.—Mrs. Langtry, responding to an interview, declares that she is thoroughly pleased with her visit to America. She will probably return there in the autumn, but says she has no idea of building a theatre in New York, as has been mentioned.

—Nineteen condemned locomotives of the Pennsylvania railroad are being demolished in Altoona.

—Two new dwelling houses are to be erected on East Bishop street, by Messrs. Green and Lutz, respectively.

—The Williamsport base ball nine won a game from the Capital City club on Saturday, August 2. Score, 6 to 2.

—Sunday, August 3, was the first Sabbath of the eighth year of Rev. Jno. Hewitt's rectorship of St. John's Episcopal church.

—There will be six hundred or more tents put up on the Fair ground for the encampment. The water has bene taken there.

—It is a singular coincidence that however loving a couple may be, when they sit down to eat ice-cream there is a certain coldness between them.

—A large number of men are now engaged regularly on the Catholic church building and the sound of hammer and trowel salutes the ear of all who travel in that vicinity.

—The weather at Camp Gettysburg is reported to be very hot. To avoid such disagreeable sensations it will be well to hold future encampments in Bellefonte where cool breezes always blow.

—The score in the base ball game between the Harvey Fisher nine of Duncannon and the Lock Haven nine, in the latter place on Tuesday, the 5th, was 15 to 5 in favor of the latter club.

—In view of the fact that so large a proportion of the strangers now in Bellefonte are musicians, why would not a few musicales be appropriate, and a very entertaining and elegant diversion? They are popular now in many places of resort.

—Bellefonters have at least one reason for profound gratitude this year. As we glance through our exchanges, there seems to be no community so free as this of all sorts of illness. Healthful as Bellefonte always is, we never knew it more so than now.

—We hope there will be nothing to interfere with the effort to put electric light on the Fair ground. It will be a wonderful advertisement of the brilliant quality of the light and a source of great enjoyment to the veterans. If reasonable rates are asked it will be done.

—On Monday, the 4th, the Harvey Fisher base ball nine, of Duncannon, played the Williamsport nine at the latter place. The score was 25 to 1 in favor of Williamsport. The Williamsport nine, since its reorganization is one of the best clubs in Pennsylvania and has not experienced defeat for a long time past.

—Mr. George Bible had an amusing and somewhat terrifying experience at the dance at Zion on Saturday evening, the 2d. While "swinging partners" a young lady of immense avoirdupois caught him and whirled him so rapidly that his head has been giddy ever since. Did you say she was a terror, George?

—A horse attached to a buggy became frightened at the black smoke proceeding from the lime kiln on Tuesday, the 5th, and ran into town along Linn street. When near Mr. Crider's residence the buggy came in contact with some object and the further progress of the horse was stopped, not, however, until the vehicle was considerably damaged.

—A very valuable addition to the telephone is noted by the Cleveland Leader. The new device consists of a hard rubber mouth-piece or trumpet attached by a nickel-plated bracket to the telephone. By its use, it is said, a mere whisper is loud enough for any telephone, and a person standing five feet from the speaker would be unable to hear the conversation.

—The Tyrone correspondent of the Altoona Tribune says: "Colonel E. J. Pruner is getting ready for an extended trip to the far West, his objective point being Portland, Oregon, from which he will sail for Alaska. The Colonel will pass over the Northern Pacific railroad, taking in the romantic and magnificent scenery along that route. He will leave about the 12th of the present month."

—The Gazette and Bulletin and Sun and Banner, of Williamsport, and the Democrat and Express, of Lock Haven, have worked themselves into a white heat concerning the merits of their respective base ball nines. Thousands of dollars have been staked on the issue of future games between the two nines. We suggest that the games be played in Bellefonte as the best possible means of infusing an interest in the National game among our people.

Woolen Mills in Bellefonte.—What Capital and Enterprise will do for our Borough.

A representative of the NEWS gained possession of an "idea" that a portion of the car works property had been purchased for the purpose of starting a woolen factory, and to realize all the grand possibilities which such an idea implies, he put his note-book under his arm, and was soon making a bee line for the business headquarters of that well-known Hebrew fellow-citizen, Mr. E. Joseph. That gentleman is the principal partner in the prosperous mercantile firm of Joseph Bros. & Co., and there is no citizen in Bellefonte who has better business abilities.

We obtained the information that Mr. Joseph has been successful in interesting a wealthy woolen manufacturer in Philadelphia in the enterprise and he, in connection with Mr. Joseph, has submitted a proposition to the present owners of the car-works for the purchase of the largest of the brick buildings connected with the car works property. It is a commodious and very substantial structure and is well adapted for the purpose. We have no doubt that the company now owning the property will accept the proposition, which also includes the purchase of sufficient water power to operate the new industry. The proposition is a very fair one and the business-like reputation of the owners of the property ensures its acceptance.

As soon as these final arrangements are completed the building will at once be fitted up with the requisite amount of machinery of the most modern description and most approved patterns, which means an expense of not less than $20,000. This will all be put in by the 1st of October and a sufficient number of persons will at once be employed. This also means employment for many persons in Bellefonte, as, in addition to a certain number of skilled laborers, between 40 and 50 persons in this community will be given remunerative work. This is said to be a good market for woolen goods and the products of the factory will include everything in that line, and as Blaine and Logan and Protection will have a walk-over to the White House next November, this factory will boom and "all-wool" garments will be plenty—likewise the wherewithal to purchase them.

So far as Mr. Joseph is concerned, he has given this subject much consideration. He has realized a large fortune by business operations in our town and is ready to engage in any further enterprises which are at once based on sound business principle and will contribute to the wealth of the town. That he lends his name to any project of this character is sufficient evidence that it is all it represents to be. The NEWS wishes the new undertaking unlimited success.

The Fountain.

An exceedingly handsome bronze fountain now occupies a conspicuous position in the Diamond. From it flows fresh, clear, cold, sparkling water for the refreshment of man and beast. In front, looking west toward High street, is a trough sufficiently large for a horse, the noblest of all animals, to quaff the refreshing beverage to his content. On the south is a smaller receptacle from which dogs may lap water until thirst is quenched. On the Court House side of the fountain flows a constant stream of water. The drinking cup, unfortunately, was broken, but it was quickly replaced and the statuesque figure is now complete. Beneath this never-ceasing flow of water is a Scriptural quotation from John 6:35: "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst." Surmounting the fountain is the figure of an angel which adds greatly to its beauty. As soon as the water was coursing from it on Wednesday the thirsty crowd gathered near and seemed to consider the drinks obtained from this source much more delicious than any other. Horses, too, were driven to the drinking trough, and, with one exception, drank readily, Mr. John Sourbeck's spirited steed being the only one that refused. The fountain from the base to the top of the angelic figure is 11 feet 9 inches. The ladies cannot be praised too highly for their successful efforts in having this very useful and ornamental fountain placed in the Diamond. Such an improvement has been needed for years past and it will doubtless accomplish much good. We would be pleased to see similar fountains placed in every public place in the borough.

—The Republicans of Blair county met in convention in Hollidaysburg on Tuesday, August 5, and made nominations as follows: Congress, Hon. Samuel McCamant, of Tyrone; State Senate, Hon. B. L. Hewit; Assembly, Samuel B. Isenberg, of Huston township, and Edmond Shaw, Esq., of Altoona; County Commissioner, J. S. Calvert, of Logan township.

Company B in Camp.

CAMP GETTYSBURG, Aug. 4, '84.

The camp on this historic battle ground is at its highest point of interest. Through the courtesy and with the guidance of Major Curtin, of Gen. Beaver's staff, we were shown the many points of interest to be seen here, particularly Meade's headquarters, from whence the famous General directed his troops during the engagement. This house is still occupied by the same family who lived there prior to the battle, and through the kindness of an aged lady, who is a member of the household, we were shown many marks where the shells penetrated the building. We also visited Culp's Hill and the famous National Cemetery, where lie thousands of known and unknown soldiers who fell during the great engagement.

Company B is comfortably settled on the western end of the ground on the spot where the Rebel General Pickett made his final charge and was repulsed by the 6th corps. The accommodations here are very good and the boys are in excellent health, no cases of sickness being thus far reported.

CAMP NOTES.

Our boys are amusing themselves by digging in the fields and hillsides for relics, and their labor has not been in vain.

Yesterday the Fifth regiment was inspected by Adjutant General Guthrie, and after examining the arms of Company B, the Adjutant General complimented Captain Mullen by saying he had never handled finer guns than ours.

Last evening the Division was reviewed by Gov. Pattison and the troops presented a fine appearance.

Mine host of the Brockerhoff House was promenading the streets of the camp to-day ornamented with a whitewashed necktie, a case of too much sun.

A game of base ball will be played to-day between Company B, of Bellefonte, and Company G, of Lewistown.

Secretary Crow has the position of Regimental marker. W. R.

Butter.

The subject which forms the title for these observations is not as rare as is the article itself. People who have no regular supply of butter left at their doors weekly say that butter is just now impossible to obtain. The solution of this scarceness is not difficult to discover. The consumption of milk is not greater than it was in July while the supply of the lactael fluid is probably larger. Therefore the skilled butter manufacturers who inhabit Centre county's dairies are forming as many of the golden rolls of butter as they ever did, but don't choose to bring it to market. No, with that wonderful eye to a promising future which is supposed to be characteristic only of the bank cashier, the dairyman and his good wife are packing away the golden rolls until the G. A. R. encampment. Then people must have butter to feed their hungry guests for love or money. But love won't buy an ounce of it so money will be the charm that will constitute the purchasing power.

It is well-nigh impossible for some people to do without butter. To think of even touching such a thing as butterine or oleomargerine is nauseating in the extreme, but pure, fresh butter is to them the apple of their eye. Therefore, they are just now in a distressed state of mind. We are told that it is indeed an ill wind that blows no one any good; so, we can affirm, the wind has never visited this section which was without its accompanying evil; and while we all look forward to the encampment with lively anticipations this apparent scarcity of one of the inestimable commodities of life is one of the attendant ills. That there is any real scarcity of butter is not probable, and when the maximum price is reached it will be forthcoming in vast quantities.

—The picnic held under the auspices of the Roman Catholic church in Valentines' grove on Wednesday was an enjoyable affair and was visited by people of all religious faiths. We must state that these picnics are models of propriety and excellence and everything is kept within the strictest bounds of decorum. While dancing is permitted, no round dances are allowed, and as the figures move through the intricate movements of the dance the spectacle is very pretty, combining nothing but grace and beauty. The dinner and supper served were very choice. We are also informed that the picnic was required to be closed at 8 o'clock, the young people not being permitted to continue the enjoyment beyond that hour, thus requiring temperance in pleasure as well as everything else. Much of the credit for these strict but eminently proper rules by which to govern the festivities is due to Rev. Father McArdle. We hope the picnic was financially very successfu

Disagreeable Duties.

The officials of all degrees of prominence in our county often have difficult and disagreeable duties to perform, but none more so than the Sheriff. Only a few weeks ago Centre county's sheriff was called upon to perform one of the most objectionable duties which have thus far fallen to his lot. It was to take a little girl, aged 6, from a person who had cared for her since she was an infant and restore her to her father. This he did because the law required him to do so, but it was exceedingly difficult for him, because the little girl clung to her life-long protector, and sobbed "Oh, don't, don't; it will kill me!" But inexorable law must be obeyed, almost unjust as it seemed in this instance, and the writ was executed. Let us hope that the little one will become reconciled to the new condition of things. But let this also be a lesson to all who, for the several reasons which arise, see fit to adopt infants as their own. The adoption, in the instance cited, if there really was one, which is disputed, was merely verbal, although no thought that it would not hold good perhaps ever occurred to the child's kind friend. But when a change of circumstances occurred in the father's life, he again claimed his child and the scene which followed was extremely sad.

There is a legal mode of adopting children which should be followed in all cases and then there will be no possibility of again severing tender attachments. In regard to the names or place of location of the parties concerned, we do not chose to give them, as it is a private affair and the surface indications which appear may not be all there is in the affair. With these few brief reflections we bid the subject adieu.

Borough Legislation.

Although Monday evening, August 4, was the first of the regular meetings of council for August, the attendance of members included only President Crider, and Messrs. Hicks, Tate, Ed Brown, Jr., Bartley and Cedars and Clerk Mitchell.

Mr. James McClure, Jr., appeared before council in behalf of the residents of East Bishop street who want 1600 feet of 4-inch pipe laid along that thoroughfare at an estimated cost of $800, which will be reimbursed to the borough at the rate of $100 per annum taxes. This proposition was referred to the Water committee to report at the next meeting.

A very long list of needed repairs of gutters and pavements was reported, and the property owners were, on motion, given until August 25 to complete them.

None of the reports of the committees contained items of much importance and council adjourned at an early hour.

—Bellefonte has never known a more important occasion than the encampment of the G. A. R. which will commence next week, We have no doubt the citizens of the town appreciate the honor which the encampmen confers on Bellefonte and will do all they can to contribute to its success. There is a way in which every citizen can and should help, and that is in providing proper decorations. Festoons, lanterns, flags, spruce, etc., are tasteful decorations and are easily procured and show off to advantage on our streets. Every building should have some decoration and there should be as much illumination as possible at night. This will keep people on the street in the evening and contribute to the cheerfulness and good-feeling of all. There is only a short time to make these arrangements and they should receive attention at once.

—On Sunday, August 17, the services at the G. A. R. camp will be conducted by the chaplain of the department; in the evening there will be a dress parade. On Monday evening, August 18, there will be a grand masquerade ball in Armory Hall. On Tuesday there will be excursions in the morning and a sham battle at night. On Wednesday, the 20th, the reunion of the 45 regiment will occur. There will be games of foot ball every day except Sunday and concerts by the Weccacoe Band every night except Tuesday.

—A girl who has been there says that the story that the Californians want wives is false. There are more men than woman there, it is true, but many of the men run away from wives in the East and don't want to be troubled with any others. Therefore, we advise our marriageable girls not to journey to the Golden State with any such unfounded expectation as securing husbands easily.

—The grading of the B., N. and L. Railroad is almost completed and workmen are now at work on the part that extends through the Phoenix Planing Mill property.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—All the Millheim Sunday-schools are to unite in a picnic which will be held soon.

—The residence occupied by J. H. Rankin, Esq., on Thomas St., is being handsomely repainted.

—The martial music heard every evening is furnished by a drum corps which practices regularly on Half Moon hill.

—The Watchman local complains that times are so dull that it is next to impossible for him to indite a local item. Affairs are quite lively over in this direction, Friend Watchman, and local items abundant.

—Messrs. Frank Bible and W. B. Rankin, of Curtin street, have recently laid boardwalks in front of their premises. Several other property owners on the street have hauled lumber for the same purpose.

—It is believed by a very large number of Bellefonte Republicans that Hon. Jno. B. Linn will be an excellent candidate for the legislature, and if the election of a Republican is at all probable, the Hon. J. B has about as many winning qualities as any other man who can be named.

—Mr. James Campbell a young man aged about 25 years, died at the home of his mother in Milesburg on Friday, of consumption, from which he had suffered a long time. The funeral services took place at 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon at his mother's residence, the interment being made in the Union cemetery, this place.

—A grand hop to have been held at the Logan House, Altoona, on Friday evening, was postponed because of the serious illness of one of the guests at the hotel, and a large party of Bellefonte ladies and gentlemen who were to have attended the hop, continued their journey as far Cresson, whence they returned on Saturday.

—Word has been received that William Kays, a man with only one leg, who at one time drove stage for Mr. Livingstone, and was a resident of Pine Grove, this county, was shot in the arm at Camp Gettysburg on Wednesday. He has recently been a resident of Altoona and went to the Camp with a company from that city. The wound is considered quite dangerous.

—The Bierly Bros., of Milesburg, in addition to the fact that they are among the best musicians in Centre county, are also skillful and enterprising business men. They have just added a new and quite costly apple grinder to their cider mill apparatus and are prepared to begin the fall campaign of making that delectable drink. Their cider mill has become famous and the cider manufactured is of the very best.

—A contest carried on by two young ladies for the benefit of the Catholic church, the victorious contestant to receive a locket and chain, was won by Miss Pearl, although Miss Katie Murray, the other contestant, deserves equal credit. Each of these young ladies raised over $150, Miss Pearl's amount exceeding Miss Murray's by only $4. We hear that the entire amount raised by means of the Catholic picnic was about $800.

—Mr. Frank McCoy is making very elaborate and tasteful improvements in the residence formerly owned and occupied by the family of Mr. Thos. Burnside on Linn street. The work is being done under the superintendence of Mr. Fasic. Several of the apartments on the first floor are being papered and the ceilings fresco painted. When completed, the residence will be very elegant. We understand that it is Mr. McCoy's intention to occupy it.

—There was a large attendance at the festival of the Pleasant Gap band on Saturday last. Dancing was the chief amusement in the evening, for which delightful music was rendered by Miss Emma Swartz on the organ, and was accompanied by Mr. Frank Deitrick on the violin and Prof. Joe Fearer on the cornet. Miss Swartz plays the organ with unusual skill and her services are in great demand on such occasions. There are very few young ladies who are such perfect masters of that instrument as Miss Swartz, and the gentlemen who accompanied her did equally well, the dancing being participated in with unusual zest. But about 11 o'clock a sudden shower of rain caused a cessation of further enjoyment.

A Native of Damascus.

On Wednesday evening Elias Barakat, a native of Damascus, the oldest city in the world, delivered an interesting address in the Presbyterian church before quite a large audience. He has a foreign appearance, talks with a foreign accent and on the occasion in question he was attired in a Syrian garment—a pale green silk robe fitting neatly over the chest and around the waist, with an equally neat-fitting coat over it. The robe from the waist down resembled a woman's tight-fitting dress. A chain was suspended from his neck to the waist. The attire is very handsome, and if fashion should ever dictate it that wouldn't be a bad sort of a garment to wear in America.

Mr. Barakat told the congregation that he was born in Damascus, where superior blades of all descriptions are made. It now includes a population of 180,000. It contains the "street that is called Straight," and the house in which the speaker lived was not far from the place where Apostle Paul was let down from the wall in a basket. He told the audience the route to be taken to reach the city, which after leaving the seaport town of Baruch, is 60 miles by stage to Damascus. He tempted his hearers to emigrate at once to Damascus for a permanent residence by telling them that there are large gardens near that city in which all kinds of fruits grow so abundantly that grapes are sold at the rate of 2 lbs for a cent and other things in proportion. He and his immediate relatives were members of the Greek church, but were converted by the preaching of missionaries.

The Mohammedans oppress the Christians shamefully and when he was converted his Mohammedan relatives and friends withdrew from him. He referred to the massacre of Christians in the year 1860, and also the one in Alexandria two years ago, and after that his mother and sisters were confined in a castle, also to be slain, but were quite providentially saved.

He spent 14 years of his life in Egypt, the country where rain and snow does not come, but which is watered by the noble and mysterious Nile. Where 25 years ago there were no Christians there are now large numbers of them, giving great encouragement to prosecute the work of foreign missions. He showed that the Mohammedan religion hopes to prosper only by the sword. A Mohammedan is saved by fasting, prayer five times daily and giving alms to members of the faith. All sorts of wickedness is condoned, if a man has these three requisites of his faith, and it is a religious duty to kill Christians. All except the followers of Mohammed are consigned at the judgment to a place of punishment. The speaker believes that the Christian religion will triumph

Reunion of the Reserve Association.

The following communication received by D. M. Glenn, of this place, assistant secretary of the Penn'a Reserve Association, will interest many of our readers. As will be perceived by the contents of the letter, it is necessary for all who expect to attend to notify Mr. Glenn and he will make arrangements with the recording secretary for all the advantages of reduced railroad fare, etc. The letter is a follows:

HEADQ'RS PENN'A. RESERVE ASSOCIATION, N. W. COR. BROAD AND FILBERT STREETS,
PHILADELPHIA, May 1st, 1884.

Comrade: The Annual Reunion of the Association this year will be held in Philadelphia, September 16, 1884, on the occasion of the unveiling of the monument erected to the memory of Gen. John F. Reynolds.

The afternoon of that day will be devoted to business and the unveiling of the monument; in the evening there will be a banquet at the Union League, costing each member $1.50. To make the necessary arrangements for all who intend to participate, the recording secretary of the Association should be notified of about how many members of your county will be present, their names, and stations on railroads from which they start should be given, so they can have the benefit of reduced rates. The information should be in the secretary's hands, at these Head-Quarters, before the 1st of September.

Respectfully yours,
A. G. CURTIN, President.

Attest:
CHAS. DEVINE, Rec. Sec.

We believe that this reunion was originally appointed to be held on the 1st of July, but was, for some reason, postponed until September 16.

—We acknowledge the receipt of a copy of Blaine's Grand March, published by J. M. Hoffman & Co., music publishers, 141 Smithfield St., Pittsburgh. It is a fine composition.

The Encampment.

The time of the G. A. R. parade on Saturday, August 16, will be about 5 p. m., immediately after the arrival of the 5 o'clock train. When that is ended Ex-Governor Curtin will deliver the address of welcome at a place hereafter to be determined, The Governor was called on last Friday by a committee of citizens, including Mr. J. P. Harris, J. L. Spangler, Esq., and J. H. Rankin, Esq., who requested him to perform this important duty, and he readily consented, so a very fine address may be expected.

Lutheran Conference.

The Northern Conference of the Central Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran church met in Philipsburg on Tuesday, August 5, and concluded its sessions on Thursday evening. The first session was held in the Baptist church. For the following account of the proceedings we are indebted to the Philipsburg Journal:

The President, Rev. W. C. Fischer, of Centre Hall, preached the opening sermon, which was able, eloquent and instructive. On Wednesday morning, after a half-hour's devotional service, Conference convened in the Union church. The morning hour was spent in business session and reports on State of Religion. At 10.30 o'clock Rev. S. F. Greenhoe read an essay on the Ninth Article of the Augsburg Confession, subject: "Baptism," which reading was followed by a spirited discussion on the nature and necessity of that blessed ordinance. The afternoon was spent in Conference business and reports on the State of Religion, and at 3 o'clock a paper was read on the Tenth Article of the Augsburg Confession by Rev. S. E. Furst, who set forth in a clear, distinct and forcible manner the Lutheran Doctrine of the Lord's Supper. A discussion followed in which it was maintained that Christ was really, or sacramentally, present in the Lord's Supper, and that the glorified Christ was given and received by that ordinance, not in a gross or carnal sense, but with the elements of faith.

Wednesday evening service was held in the Methodist church. Rev. P. A. Heilman, of Lock Haven, preached an impressive discourse, in which he set forth the faith of Abraham in offering to God the child of promise, and closed the discourse with an appeal to all present, that in this season of dearth in the ministry of the Church, it is the duty of parents to consecrate their boys to the Master and His work.

Thursday morning, after a half-hour's devotional service, Conference proceeded to hearing reports, and at 10:30 Rev. W. H. Diven delivered an address on "The Duty of Parents to the Children of the Church." The address was followed by many short deliverences on the subject, pastors and members of sister denominations participating in the discussion.

As we go to press this [Thursday] afternoon the Conference is continued, at 3 p. m. children's meeting is being held, which is addressed by Reverends Greenhoe, Heilman and Zimmerman. Conference will close this evening in the Methodist church, and an address delivered by Rev. A. K. Zimmerman, in place of Rev. S. Henry, who is detained by illness from attending Conference. Many of the members of Conference have not put in an appearance, yet the sessions have been earnest, interesting and instructive.

—When we walked along the brow of Half Moon hill Friday evening we could not but be controlled by the conviction that money and good taste might convert it into the most beautiful spot in Pennsylvania, far surpassing in attractiveness either Bedford or Minnequa Springs, just as Bellefonte's grand spring surpasses all others. The entire length of the hill, a mile or more, is comparatively level, and over-looks the town, and the romantic rocks, hills and level lands threaded by streams of silver. What a broad, beautiful avenue might be constructed there! Then there is space for fountains and ponds containing fish, and grottos, and comfortable seats and many other requisites of modern pleasure resorts. Then, with the music of a brass band filling the air with melody, what an inviting promenade Half Moon Avenue would be! It would be frequented by immense multitudes during the evening and early morning hours, and with a brilliant illumination from electric lights it would be an attractive spot until late at night.

Death of Dr. George W. Kline.

It is with regret that we record the death of Dr. Geo. W. Kline, of Potter's Mills, which occurred Thursday evening at 11 o'clock. He had been ill about three weeks, his disease being typhoid fever. Dr. Kline was a young man of most estimable character. He had recently been married and his death in the prime of life will be a terrible shock to his young wife and also to his parents and brothers and sisters, by all of whom he was much beloved. He was a consistent member of the Lutheran church and his pure, upright life is a model for all and a source of infinite consolation to those who knew him His brother, Rev. Mr. Kline, an Episcopal clergyman, arrived last evening from Ashland, Pa., just in time to bid his dying brother a tearful farewell. The deceased was 26 years of age. The funeral took place on Saturday at 2 o'clock p. m., the services to take place at Dr. Kline's late residence at Potter's Mills and the interment to be made in the Lutheran cemetery at Centre Hall.

—The temperance sociable Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. Isaac Mitchell was an occasion of great enjoyment to the large number of young ladies and gentlemen who were present. Music of a very delightful description was rendered by some of the young ladies who are visiting in Bellefonte and the entire entertainment was unusually pleasing and satisfactory.

Miss Kate Curtin, daughter of ex-Gov. Curtin, returned home on Tuesday of last week after an absence extending throughout the entire winter. As society in Bellefonte is deprived of her presence so much, it is to be heped that her stay in Bellefonte will be longer than usual on this occasion.

Miss Jessie Platt, of Claremont, N. J., arrived on the 8.55 train on Tuesday and has joined the gay coterie of young ladies who are the guests of Miss Sallie Hoffer. There is certainly no more brilliant place in Bellefonte just now than the Hoffer residence, rendered so by its unusually large number of fair inhabitants.

Miss Lottie Mann and Miss Bessie Mann, of Lewistown, are guests at the home of our prominent fellow-townsman, J. Fearon Mann. They are vivacious and pleasing young ladies and Miss Lottie is an extraordinarily fine musician. Railroads.

Hon. L. A. Mackey, of Lock Haven, President of the Bald Eagle Valley R. R., was in this vicinity nearly all of last week, and has been principally engaged in procuring the right of way and estimating the cost of the Nittany Valley Branch of the Bald Eagle R. R., extending about four miles through Armor's Gap. If the estimate of the cost of this route proves it to be more advantageous than the branch contemplated by way of Ross Farm Gap to connect with the Nittany and Lemont R. R., the former branch will be built this fall. The branch through Armor's Gap will open up the ore land of Curtins and Jackson's, tapping on a portion of Valentines'. The Ross Farm Gap branch would run through Valentines ore lands more exclusively. Of course, the latter branch, will not, in any event, be built until the Nittany and Lemont R. R. is further advanced toward completion. We learn that the Spring Mills and Lemont R. R. is completed as far as Linden Hall and the rails will certainly be laid as far as Lemont this year. The grading of the road from Lemont to this place will also be completed before winter.

Flag Raising and Banquet.

On Thursday evening next at 6 o'clock a large and very handsome flag will be raised above the cupola on the New Brockerhoff House. The pole upon which it will be elevated will be 35 feet in height and the beautiful stars and stripes which will be displayed thereon will be very elegant. A streamer to be placed above the flag will have on it the name of the hotel, and appropriate exercises will attend the operation of raising the National emblems. At 8 o'clock a banquet will be served in the hotel to which Company B, N. G., of which Mr. C. G. McMillen is a member, will be invited. The banquet will be in honor of Company B, and a few of the officers of the Fifth regiment and other gentlemen who are specially interested in the welfare of the company will be present. It bids fair to be a very interesting and successful event.

—Austin Curtin, Esq., was in town Monday after a week's absence, during which he has been interesting himself in the encampment of the G. A. R., to begin next Saturday. He reports that there will be a very large attendance and the preparations for the reception of the veterans can not be on a scale too extensive to do honor to the occasion. Every day between now and the opening of the encampment should be utilized by our citizens in decorating their residences and places of business and the entire town should assume a gala and festive appearance.
